NATIONAL COLLEGIATE HOCKEY CONFERENCE BIO

Entering its seventh season of competition in 2019-20, the National Collegiate Hockey Conference has established itself as one of the premier collegiate hockey conferences in the country, with the last four NCAA Men's Division I National Champions calling the NCHC home. In doing so, the NCHC becomes the first conference with four straight National Champions since the WCHA from 2002-06.

Long before the NCHC saw national champions being crowned, however, the building blocks had to be put in place. The conference was founded in the summer of 2011 when six institutions bonded together to form a collection of some of the most notable college hockey programs in the nation. Just a few months later, the conference grew to eight teams and established the foundation for this prestigious group of institutions. Built on the principles of excellence both on and off the ice, the NCHC is committed to fostering an environment of integrity, sportsmanship and competition.

The motivation for forming this new conference came as the landscape of college hockey began to change. When Penn State University announced it was starting a college hockey program in the spring of 2011, the Big 10 hockey conference was created. The seismic shift sent ripples throughout the college hockey world and left many institutions searching for stability. On July 13, 2011, the leaders from six schools: Colorado College, the University of Denver, Miami University, the University of Minnesota Duluth, the University of Nebraska Omaha and the University of North Dakota, announced the decision to start their own conference beginning in the 2013-14 academic year. On Sept. 22, 2011, St. Cloud State University and Western Michigan University accepted invitations and the NCHC grew to its current membership of eight teams.

The infrastructure of the conference began to materialize in August 2011, as Colorado Springs, the birthplace of the NCAA Hockey Championships, was selected as the home of the league's headquarters. Jim Scherr, the former CEO of the U.S. Olympic Committee, was named the conference's first commissioner in January of 2012.

Later that January, the NCHC and CBS Sports Network inked a multi-year agreement to nationally televise several conference games per season, including the NCHC Tournament semifinals and championship games. In June 2012, the NCHC announced that Target Center in Minneapolis, Minn. would be the inaugural home of the conference's championship.

In July 2013, Scherr left the NCHC but the conference didn't miss a beat, as Josh Fenton, former senior associate athletic director at Miami University, was named the conference's second commissioner. Fenton played an integral role in the formation of the new conference, making a seamless transition to his new role.

Under Fenton's guidance, the NCHC successfully launched its official website, NCHCHockey.com, in August of 2013. The NCHC then officially dropped the puck on Oct. 18, 2013 as Miami hosted North Dakota and Colorado College hosted Minnesota Duluth in the first ever conference games, both of which were nationally televised on CBS Sports Network.

In November of 2013, with the help of fan suggestions and a fan vote, the NCHC's championship was renamed the NCHC Frozen Faceoff. St. Cloud State became the inaugural NCHC regular-season champions, capturing the Julie and Spencer Penrose Memorial Cup – the NCHC's regular-season trophy - on the final night of the 2013-14 regular season. Denver then went on to claim the inaugural NCHC Frozen Faceoff title, defeating Miami in the championship game on March 22, 2014 at Target Center.

The final Frozen Faceoff at Target Center took place March 17-18, 2017 with Minnesota Duluth taking home the NCHC Tournament title. That summer, the NCHC Board of Directors made the decision to relocate the conference's championship weekend across the river to Saint Paul, Minn. In September of 2017, the NCHC signed a new agreement with Xcel Energy Center, home to the NHL's Minnesota Wild, and Minnesota Sports & Entertainment, also making Xcel Energy Center the new home of the NCHC's championship weekend through at least 2022. The first Frozen Faceoff at Xcel Energy Center in 2018 saw record crowds for the event as Denver took home its second Frozen Faceoff crown, while UMD captured its second Frozen Faceoff title in year two at Xcel Energy Center.

NATIONAL COLLEGIATE HOCKEY CONFERENCE BIO

In September of 2014, the NCHC added to its technology platform with the launch of NCHC.tv, the conference's fully integrated digital network - a first for a NCAA single-sport conference. Now entering its sixth season, NCHC.tv has allowed fans to watch games online from all eight member schools anywhere in the world throughout each season, with NCHC.tv mobile apps and OTT apps added for the 2017-18 campaign. The NCHC also increased its TV exposure in 2014-15, airing games on FOX College Sports and FOX Sports North, in addition to CBS Sports Network, all three of which continue to broadcast NCHC contests.

Over its first six seasons, the NCHC has had tremendous success on the ice. Along with four national champions, the conference has seen 10 teams earn a trip to the NCAA Frozen Four, the most by any conference during those six years (2014-19), and 23 teams make the NCAA Tournament in those seasons. NCHC teams have also combined to post the best non-conference record among the six NCAA Division I men's conferences four of the last five seasons, and held the No. 1 spot in the USCHO.com Poll in 60 of 72 weeks over the last three seasons (2016-19).

The NCHC reached a historic milestone when North Dakota won the 2016 NCAA National Championship on April 9, giving the NCHC its first national champion in only its third year. UND first defeated NCHC rival Denver in the national semifinals, marking the first ever all-NCHC Frozen Four semifinal on April 7, before downing Quinnipiac to claim the championship in Tampa. A year later, Denver returned to the Frozen Four, this time finishing the job as the Pioneers were crowned 2017 NCAA National Champions after defeating fellow NCHC foe Minnesota Duluth in Chicago in a thrilling national championship game – the first ever all-NCHC national championship game. Minnesota Duluth then made return trips to the Frozen Four in 2018 and 2019, winning back-to-back national titles in Saint Paul, Minn. (2018) and Buffalo, N.Y. (2019) to complete an NCHC four-peat.

The NCHC had a record-setting year in the conference's second season of competition (2014-15) as well, as six of eight NCHC teams made the 2015 NCAA Tournament, setting a record for percentage of teams from one conference (75 percent) to make the NCAA field.

The members of the NCHC are certainly no stranger to the NCAA Tournament. This collection of hockey programs has combined to win eight NCAA championships and make 27 Frozen Four appearances since 2000. In the history of college hockey, NCHC schools have combined to win 21 NCAA championships, including the last four. Only three programs have won more than six NCAA men's hockey titles and two of them (Denver and North Dakota with eight each) reside in the NCHC.

Individually, the NCHC achieved another first in 2017 when Denver defenseman Will Butcher won the Hobey Baker Award, becoming the first NCHC student-athlete to claim college hockey's top honor. North Dakota's Zane McIntyre became the first NCHC netminder to capture the Mike Richter Award as the nation's top goaltender, doing so in 2015, while Denver goalie Tanner Jaillet won the award in 2017. Minnesota Duluth defenseman Scott Perunovich took home the Tim Taylor Award in 2018, making him the first NCHC player to nab National Rookie of the Year honors. Thirty-five NCHC student-athletes have garnered AHCA All-America honors in the NCHC's first six seasons, while 58 NCHC alumni have since gone on to skate in the NHL, including 48 in 2018-19.

The geographic diversity of the NCHC features some of the most beautiful terrain in the United States and spans three times zones (Eastern, Central and Mountain). The majestic Rocky Mountains of Colorado provide the backdrop to North Dakota's Red River Valley and America's heartland from Nebraska to Ohio. From the countless lakes of Minnesota to the shores of Lake Michigan, the NCHC is home to some of the most breath-taking scenery in the country.

With a strong foundation of institutions rich in tradition and excellence, the National Collegiate Hockey Conference is poised to remain the premier college hockey conference for years to come.

NCHC STAFF BIOS

JOSH FENTON, Commissioner

Josh Fenton is in his seventh year as Commissioner of the National Collegiate Hockey Conference (NCHC). He was appointed to the position on July 1, 2013. In six seasons, Fenton has guided the eight member institutions through a period of tremendous success as arguably the best conference in all of college hockey.

NCHC member institutions have accomplished the following on the ice over the past six years:
-Twenty Three (23) combined teams in NCAA Tournament;
-Ten (10) combined teams in NCAA Frozen Four;
-Four (4) NCAA Division I National Champions (2016 – University of North Dakota, 2017 – University of Denver and 2018 & 2019 – University of Minnesota Duluth)
-The best non-conference, combined conference winning percentage among any DI men's ice hockey conference (.637);
-Thirty Five (35) American Hockey Coaches Association (AHCA) All-America honors
-A National Player (2017), Goaltender (2016 & 2017), Rookie (2018), and Coach (2017) of the Year Awards;

In addition to the added success on the ice, the NCHC has continued to excel off the ice surface. Fenton negotiated a new five-year agreement to move the conference's tournament championship (Frozen Faceoff) to Xcel Energy Center (home to the NHL's Minnesota Wild), which commenced with the 2018 event. The move to Saint Paul, Minn. proved to be the right one, as the 2018 Frozen Faceoff surpassed all prior year's attendance, tickets sold and revenue, which included a 35% increase in tickets sold from the 2017 event. The 2019 event continued to show that one of college hockey's best tournament championship weekends is at Xcel Energy Center with over 20,000 fans attending over two-days.

In addition to a new partnership with Xcel Energy Center, Fenton developed partnerships with the City of Saint Paul and Visit Saint Paul. The conference continues to make concerted efforts toward the overall fan experience during Frozen Faceoff weekend. With the help of Visit Saint Paul, the NCHC holds their annual Award's Celebration at the Science Museum of Minnesota, a Frozen Faceoff Fan Fest adjacent to Xcel Energy Center, setup fan hotels, and held many more fan engaging activities.

Beyond the success of the conference tournament, Fenton and the NCHC continue to deliver one of the best direct-to-consumer, subscription based digital video platforms (NCHC.tv) in college athletics. Once again, NCHC.tv in 2018-19 continued to provide fans with the best digital video experience in college hockey. A new connected device app was created and launched during the 2018-19 season on Amazon's FireTV. In the summer of 2017, Fenton negotiated an extension agreement with NeuLion College to further enhance the NCHC.tv platform. Additional to new business terms, Fenton focused the extension agreement around new technology, distribution and content enhancements that were rolled out throughout the 2017-18 season. Native apps within the iOS and Android environments were made available for mobile and tablet users. A refreshed experience in the browser environment was also completed. Within both the browser and app experience, fans will now find an aggregation of content, which includes live & on-demand video, social streams, and news articles. Additional technology enhancements were also made to the live video viewing experience, including timeline markers, multi-screen viewing, and enhanced playback features. NCHC.tv can also be viewed through apps on the connected devices, AppleTV, Roku, and Amazon's FireTV.

The total number of active NCHC.tv subscribers have grown over 50% and subscription revenue has grown 179% since 2014-15 (NCHC.tv's first year). New subscribers grew 50% in 2018-19 while subscription revenue was up 4% over that same period. The NCHC distributes 85% of all NCHC.tv revenue back to the member institutions on an annual basis.

Fenton has been integral to developing partnerships with TV networks to gain national and regional exposure for the conference and member institutions. In 2018-19 Fenton helped the conference distribute 32 games through a national (CBS Sports Network or FOX College Sports) or regional sports network (FOX Sports North). The NCHC has one of college hockey's few national TV network partnerships (CBS Sports Network). Fenton was involved in negotiating the conference's first agreement with CBS Sports prior to the inaugural season in 2013-14. In January of 2019, Fenton renegotiated the partnership with CBSSN to continue broadcasting NCHC games through the 2021-22 season. On a regional front, in the summer of 2018 Fenton renegotiated a renewed partnership with Fox Sports North (FSN), which has existed since the 2014-15 season. Recognized as the premier regional sports network in the upper Midwest and an important market for the NCHC's success, the FSN partnership features games from either St. Cloud State or Minnesota Duluth.

Nationally, Fenton is actively engaged in the national landscape of the sport and is recognized as a true promoter of the growth of hockey. He has represented the Hockey Commissioner's Association on various committees with the National Hockey League and NCAA. With the NHL, Fenton has been a part of the Hockey Development Summit Committee, Hockey Player Safety Summit, and the NHL's Declaration of Principles unveiling. He has also spent considerable time and effort with NHL leadership to improve the overall experience and opportunity for those that play the sport, particularly in the areas of player eligibility and recruitment. From an NCAA perspective, Fenton led an ad-hoc committee made up of head coaches, athletic administrators, and hockey Commissioners to pass watershed recruiting legislative changes approved in April of 2019. He has also worked closely with NCAA staff on areas of eligibility, amateurism, playing rules, national tournament, and student-experience. Fenton served on the NCAA Ice Hockey Rules Committee Member and is currently a member of College Hockey Inc. (CHI) and Hockey Commissioner Association (HCA) Boards.

Prior to becoming Commissioner, Fenton played an integral role, while on staff at Miami University, in the conference formation, which included leading NCHC Board of Director meetings and assisting legal counsel in drafting documents to officially establish the conference. Fenton also helped negotiate with CBS Sports Network as the conference's national broadcast partner, built the first-ever budget for the conference, assisted in securing Target Center as the tournament championship site and served as the conference's liaison on legal and financial matters.

Fenton has a wealth of intercollegiate athletics experience, previously serving as senior associate athletic director for finance and administration at Miami University prior to joining the NCHC. He was responsible for assessment and management of the athletic department's $21 million annual budget, human resource operations, and was the sport administrator for men's ice hockey, football, field hockey & men's golf. Fenton served on the athletic director's executive leadership team and was the athletic department's liaison to the university president, vice-president for finance and university general counsel.

Locally, Fenton serves the Colorado Springs community through his active role on the Colorado Springs Sports Corporation Board, Pikes Peak Chapter of the First Tee, and co-chaired the Fan Services division of the 2018 U.S. Senior Open, held at the Broadmoor Golf Club.

A native of Litchfield, Minn., Fenton received a bachelor's degree in finance in 2001 from Iowa State University, where he was a member of the men's golf team for one year. He earned his master's degree in sport studies from Miami in 2004. His family, which resides in Colorado Springs, includes his wife, Lindsay, and sons Ryan (9), Luke (7) and Drew (3).
