Soviets join youth hockey tournament

LOCAL SPORTS

Teams from the Soviet Union and Canada will join eight Alaska teams this weekend for the inaugural North Star Invitational hockey tournament.

The four-day tournament begins Friday at three area ice rinks and concludes Monday with a pair of championship games at Ben Boeke.

Twelve teams, including two from the Soviet Union city of Magadan and two from Kamloops, British Columbia, will compete in two age divisions.

Competition is expected to be fierce. The field features the Alaska All Stars midget team, which recently played the Anchorage Aces — the defending senior men's national champions — to a 7-7 tie; and the Kamloops bantam team, which captured the British Columbia championship last season.

Magadan's involvement in the tournament is a product of the sister-city relationship between Anchorage and the eastern Soviet city. Two Anchorage hockey teams are expected to travel to Magadan this winter on a reciprocal exchange.

While in Anchorage, members of all four of the foreign teams will attend Anchorage schools and stay with Anchorage families.

Joining the Magadan and Kamloops teams in the midget tournament (ages 16-17) are the Alaska All Stars and Anchorage Hockey Association North Stars, both of Anchorage; the Kenai Peninsula Hockey Association all-stars and the Fairbanks Area Hockey Association all-stars.

In the bantam tournament (ages 14-15), Magadan and Kamloops will be joined by the AHA North Stars A and B teams; the Alaska-All Stars of Anchorage and the Mustangs of Eagle River.

The tournament opens Friday at 1 p.m. with games at Ben Boeke, Dempsey Anderson and Fire Lake. Opening ceremonies will be at 5 p.m. at Ben Boeke.

Action concludes Monday at Ben Boeke with the midget championship at noon and the bantam championship at 2 p.m.
