

Consent for the Release of Police Information

Supplementary Information for the Individual

Criminal Record/Vulnerable Sector Check

When applying for any Police Records Check, you must provide your consent. Signing this consent signifies that you understand each of the information sources the police or other authorized bodies will check. The purpose of this document is to provide you with that understanding.

There are two sources of information that comprise what is referred to as police information. Subject to your consent, these two sources of information are searched to determine if they contain personal information that relates to you and which may be disclosed in accordance with applicable laws:

1. Records in the Investigative and Intelligence data banks contributed by Canadian police agencies to the Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC) system.
2. Local police information contained in local agency Occurrence Records Management System(s).

Criminal Record

Canada's National Repository of Criminal Records is maintained by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP). In Canada, a criminal record is created and maintained through the submission of an individual's criminal fingerprints. Creating a criminal record involves the submission of an initial set of fingerprints of the individual each subsequent time they appear in the system. Existing records in the RCMP National Repository of Criminal Records are fingerprint form and forwarded to the RCMP National Repository of Criminal Records. The release of criminal record information maintained by the RCMP is governed by federal laws and the Ministerial Order. Since the Identification of Criminals Act only allows the creation of a criminal record if submitted to the RCMP as part of an occurrence involving an indictable or hybrid offence, the RCMP's National Repository of Criminal Records is fingerprint-based and only contains information relating to these two categories of offences. Summary offences are included in the national repository if submitted to the RCMP as part of an occurrence involving an indictable or hybrid offence. Note: With the exception of "young person" indictable or hybrid offence convictions, police agencies are not required by law to report offences to the RCMP. Therefore, a search of local police records may reveal criminal record information that has not been reported to the RCMP.

If your fingerprints have never been taken in relation to an arrest and/or charge process, then you do not have a record in the National Repository for Criminal Records maintained by the RCMP. If, however, you do have a criminal record, but were not fingerprinted for all of your subsequent charges and/or convictions, your criminal record will not fully portray the history of your police involvement.

Record Suspension (Pardoned Offences)

An adult individual who has a criminal record may make an application to the Parole Board of Canada to receive a Record Suspension (Pardon) for one or more convictions. At the completion of a successful Record Suspension (Pardon) application process, all references to the conviction(s) on the criminal record as maintained by the RCMP for which a Record Suspension (Pardon) has been granted are sealed and are no longer available to police agencies or any individual other than the subject of the record. Disclosure of a Record Suspension (Pardon) is only possible with the consent of the Minister of Public Safety for Canada.

A Record Suspension (Pardon) does not erase a conviction. It does not allow a person to say that they do not have a criminal record.

An individual who has received a Record Suspension (Pardon), when asked, should respond: "Yes, I have been convicted of a criminal offence for which I have received a Record Suspension (Pardon)."

Due to the sensitivity of this process, only police agencies or other authorized bodies as determined by a provincial or territorial public safety minister may provide system responses that are generated by Vulnerable Sector Checks.

Offences Committed as a Youth

The Youth Criminal Justice Act restricts the use of information related to charges for offences that were committed as young persons (below the age of 18). Information related to these charges may only be disclosed upon your signed authorization and when it is required by Federal, Provincial or Municipal law, for the purposes of employment or volunteer services with the police agencies.

Two exceptions to this are:

1. When the young person was sentenced as an adult; and
2. When an individual is sentenced as an adult prior to the young person charges being sealed. In these cases section 119 of the Youth Criminal Justice Act states that the youth charges are subject to the same disclosure rules as adult convictions.

Investigative and Intelligence Information Contained in CPIC

Police agencies in Canada use CPIC to share information on persons, property, vehicles and marine vessels in support of law enforcement activities. A record that is added to CPIC belongs to the police agency that entered the record. The contributing agency's permission is required in order to use its record(s) to support an investigation or to use as a basis for a decision. Examples of records pertaining to individuals include persons who are wanted, persons who are on probation or subject to a court order, and persons who are charged with offences currently before the court. The disclosure and use of this information as part of a police information check will be governed by the laws that apply to the police agency holding the record.

The existence of these types of records in relation to an individual does not establish that the individual has a criminal record. Records indicating that an individual has been charged with a criminal offence may mean that the individual has a criminal record however; this is subject to verification of the National Repository of Criminal Records maintained by the RCMP by means of the agency that entered the information on CPIC.

Local Police Information

Local police information involves non-criminal entries which police respond to a call or complaint. This investigative activity is normally recorded in the police agency's Occurrence Records Management System. Information that is disclosed on the application for a police information check involving local police records systems includes any adverse information (e.g. police bond) where the individual is identified as having negative contact with the police. Adverse information is defined as an occurrence in which the applicant is the subject of a founded and substantiated complaint relating to a provincial or federal offence: a bona fide suspect, charged with a provincial or federal offence whether acquitted or convicted. Adverse information does not include a file where the applicant is only considered a "victim", or a "witness". The disclosure and use of this information as part of a police information check will be governed by the laws that apply to the police agency holding the record. Many jurisdictions have laws that pertain to the use and disclosure of personal information related to an individual's mental health. It is the responsibility of the police agency to apply those laws.

The existence of these types of local police records in relation to an individual does not establish that the individual has a criminal record. Local police records indicating that an individual has been charged with a criminal offence may mean that the individual has a criminal record; however, this is subject to verification by means of the National Repository of Criminal Records maintained by the RCMP.

Part 2 - Consent

Important - Informed Consent (provided by the individual)

As an individual providing informed consent to have their personal information reviewed and disclosed, it is important that you understand the nature of the information that may be contained in the records. By agreeing to allow your personal information to be disclosed to a prospective employer or organization, you acknowledge that you understand that your suitability could be determined based on the information disclosed. The suitability criteria are established and controlled by the employer or the organization - not the police agency or authorized body conducting the checks. The police agency or authorized body is not involved with, or responsible for, the decisions that are made by the employer or organization.

Statement of Consent: I consent to a search of all records and information available at the time the search is conducted, including non-conviction information, charges before the courts, findings of guilty pleas, convictions and court orders registered in my name in the National Repository of Criminal Records and local records available to the police service. I understand that if information or a possible record exists, it will not be disclosed until identification has been confirmed by either myself or my fingerprints.

Part 3 - Type of Record Check Required - Checked by Applicant (selected and initialed)

1	Name-Based Criminal Record Check	A query, based on name and date-of-birth, of active criminal files in the RCMP National Repository of Criminal Records. Used to determine the possible existence of a criminal record. Generally used as a preliminary search only to determine if a Fingerprint-based Criminal Record Check may be required. The query may also include a search of court records and a query of records management systems in other police agencies' jurisdictions through the Police Information Portal (PIP) or other data sharing systems.
	Initial here if requesting a Name-Based Criminal Record Check
2	Fingerprint-Based Criminal Record Check	A fingerprint-based search of the RCMP's national repository of fingerprints and criminal record information. The results of the search will produce a document that includes criminal record information where the identity of the applicant has been verified by fingerprints.
	Initial here if requesting a Fingerprint-Based Criminal Record Check
3	Vulnerable Sector Check	A Vulnerable Sector Check is the most comprehensive type of check. It includes a query based on name and date of birth of a local police agency's records management system, commonly referred to as a local indices check, in addition to queries of CPIC Identification, Investigative, and Intelligence Data Banks. The query may also include a search of court records and a query of records management systems in other police agencies' jurisdictions through the Police Information Portal (PIP) or other data sharing systems.
	Initial here if requesting a Vulnerable Sector Check
	<input type="checkbox"/> RCMP form 3923 is attached.
4	Declaration of Criminal Records	This will result in the RCMP detachment providing a list of all of the criminal convictions and related information that are included on the criminal record on CPIC. This may only be provided by the detachment where the applicant lives.
	Initial here if requesting a Declaration of Criminal Records	<input type="checkbox"/> Declaration of Criminal Records (RCMP form 6359) is attached.
