Welcome Aboard

Welcome to the McMullen Hockey Arena within the Thornton D. and Elizabeth S. Hooper Brigade Sports Complex. We are proud of our Midshipmen and the outstanding manner in which they represent our Academy, alumni, and friends. Expect the Mids to compete with enthusiasm, teamwork, focus, and good sportsmanship. Playing in the Eastern States Collegiate Hockey League of the American Collegiate Hockey Association provides a great challenge and has proven to be highly competitive hockey. I am certain our loyal fans will enjoy the fast paced action and spirited environment. Thanks to everyone who supports our team, and let's all cheer for another successful season for our Midshipmen.

2009-10 Navy Hockey Season Outlook

“THE MIDSHIPMEN WILL HAVE TO FIND WAYS TO SCORE EARLY AND SCORE OFTEN.”

“Go out there and play Navy Hockey!”

That is a frequent exhortation made by head coach Mike Fox in the locker room to his players before the Midshipmen take the ice. For every player on the team, those seven simple words mean it's time for 60 minutes of an aggressive, disciplined and unrelenting system of offense, defense, and neutral zone play that wears opponents down and enables Navy to be competitive until the final buzzer sounds.

That intense, hard-hitting, and fast-paced brand of hockey the Mids are known for year after year defines the term “Navy Hockey.” But who comprises Navy Hockey? The answer to that question can change as the personality of the team differs from year-to-year.

This year's squad is comprised of an especially selfless group of leaders who have an impressive reputation of excelling both on and off the ice. They entered the season with a combined cumulative grade point average of 3.233, which is among the top three intercollegiate sports at the Naval Academy behind only golf and women's tennis. The hockey team is comprised of several players who currently hold, or will hold, Company Commander and other high-ranking Brigade leadership positions. The roster includes one accomplished musician and one Class President.

The 2009-2010 squad will be a young team but will also have some talented returnees who impressed coaches and fans alike last year as plebes with their speed, intensity, and ability to put the puck in the net. Several others who began last season on the taxi squad earned permanent spots on the roster by the end of the year.

Last season, Navy chose to test its place nationally by playing not only the toughest schedule the Midshipmen have ever played, but arguably the toughest 42-game schedule among all American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA) teams. Navy ended the season with 15 wins; another four games were tied at the end of regulation. Without a doubt, the Mids definitely made a strong statement that they were a highly competitive team on the national stage.

Four of the top five goal scorers from that 2008-2009 team graduated last May, taking a combined total of 67 goals with them. Whether this year's returning upper classmen and newcomers can make up for those lost tallies will go a long way in determining whether the Mids can surpass last season's 15 wins or the previous year's 20-win mark.

Keeping the puck out of Navy's net is not expected to be a major question mark for the 2009-2010 season. The Mids return three seasoned goaltenders, led by seniors Eric Anderson and Jeremey Estevez, who have played in a combined total of 99 games in their Naval Academy careers. They are joined by sophomore Jameson Marshall, who compiled an impressive 3.78 goals against average and .872 save percentage in 22 games as a freshman.

Waiting in the wings for a chance to see some action between the pipes is a trio of talented plebe netminders: Christian Sandroni (from Granger, Indiana and the younger brother of Alex, class of 2007), Ryan Dendler (an Illinois native who attended Brother Rice High School), and Michael Thorsen (who was a goaltender with the AAA Florida Everblades near his Naples, Florida home).

Navy returns a solid corps of rugged defensemen who should help goalies keep pucks out of the net and opponents out of the crease. Leading this year's backliners are senior team captains Chandler Brewer and Patrick Heitman, plus assistant captain Andrew Ochalek. Connecticut native Brewer scored a pair of goals last season, and the 6'0", 210-pound Heitman is the team's leading scorer among returnees after a 12-goal, 21-assist season last year. The 6'2", 210-pound Ochalek gives the Mids quiet leadership and a strong physical presence whenever he steps onto the ice.

Besides the three seniors, Navy has four other returning defensemen, including juniors Matt Roberts and Jonathan Wheeler, along with sophomores Gary Beier and Pat McAleer. Wheeler has played in 50 games during his first two seasons with the Mids, while both Beier and McAleer made impressive debuts as freshmen last season.

A pair of incoming plebe defensemen – Patrick Maguire and Chris Stevens – are also hoping to see some ice time during the current campaign.

The Midshipmen are also blessed with two outstanding defensive forwards: senior assistant captain Keegan Kinkade and classmate Calen Mims. Kinkade is a relentless penalty killer who is consistently matched up against the opposition's top scorer, while Mims is looking to bounce back from an injury-plagued junior year. Mims is also a talented singer-musician who has recorded several songs in his "off time."

For Navy to be competitive and successful in the Eastern States Collegiate Hockey League (ESCHL) -- facing such powerhouse programs as Penn State, URI, West Chester, and Delaware -- it will have to find ways to score early and score often. Among those expected to contribute offensive punch are junior forwards Sam Carlson, Steve Csutoros, Michael Orzetti, and Jake Stevens-Haas, plus sophomores Tom Fick, Kevin Frederick, Shane Moran, Mitch Pulver, Jim Tumolo, and Phil Castiel.

From that group of 10 wingers and centers, Pulver showed great promise as a plebe a year ago, contributing 15 goals and 15 assists to finish as the team's fifth leading scorer. Fick was right behind his classmate Pulver in the point department, accumulating 7 goals and 18 assists in his rookie campaign. Carlson (8 goals), Frederick (5), Orzetti (3), and Tumolo (2) also displayed an ability to light the lamp on the offensive side of the ice. Youngster Moran is making his debut with the hockey team after being a member of the Navy crew team as a plebe.

Besides being a talented hockey player, Orzetti is President of the Class of 2011.

The returning forwards will have some stiff competition for spots on the team, thanks to a good group of incoming freshmen, many of whom played for highly regarded high school, prep school, and junior hockey programs around the country last year. The promising plebes include Rob Van Winter from Cumberland, RI, a product of Vermont Academy and Mount Saint Charles Academy; Curtis Bolinger, a hard-nosed skater from Lancaster, PA; Liam Kearney, a shifty skater from Wilbraham, MA; as well as several free-wheeling forwards in Matt Lutch (Milton, MA), Alan Hansen (Orlando, FL), Sean Parmigiane (Medway, MA), and Scott Wood (Okinawa, Japan).

Senior Alex Tidei, the likeable Illinois native who has recorded a 2.51 goals against average and an .890 save percentage in 215 minutes in goal during his USNA career, is serving as Team President this season.

"We have a great group of guys and outstanding senior leadership," observed third year head coach Mike Fox (35-41-5). "We are this close to being able to compete night in and night out with the top teams in our league and in the ACHA. There's no doubt in my mind that this team has the potential, the ability, the character, and the heart to take us up to that next level."

Coach Fox will be assisted behind the bench this year by Jon Mahaffee, Brendan Curley, Scott Steele and Lt. Matty Thomas. Mahaffee joins the Navy coaching staff following an impressive two-year stint as head coach at his alma mater, Towson University. Compiling a 31-27-3 record, the Annapolis native was named Eastern Collegiate Hockey Association (ECHA) 'Coach of the Year' last season. Curley, back for his eighth year with the Midshipmen, played hockey at Miami of Ohio and with the Hampton Roads Admirals in the ECHL. Steele, returning for his third season as an assistant coach, played for several seasons in the Central Hockey League with the Sioux City Musketeers, St. Paul Saints, and Mohawk Valley Stars. Thomas, in his first year as an assistant, played for four years on the Navy Hockey team before graduating in 2005.

Navy will play 23 home games, including the 33rd annual Crabpot Tournament on the second weekend in February. This year's tournament will feature Towson University, the University of Maryland, and first-timer Salisbury University in addition to the Mids.

As a special highlight this season, the Mids will face Temple University at the Flyers Skate Zone rink in Philadelphia on Friday night, December 11 – the night before the Army-Navy football game being played on Saturday, December 12 at Lincoln Financial Field, home of the Philadelphia Eagles.

2009-10 Navy Hockey Staff

Mike Fox, Head Coach

Coach Fox enters his third year at the helm of the United States Naval Academy Men's Hockey Team. In his rookie year, he led a team of returning but inexperienced Navy Hockey players to consecutive 20-game wins for the first time ever. Coach Fox's "TEAM" approach and lack of fear for taking on top ranked teams has enabled Navy Hockey to contend at a national level.

In his rookie year, he led a team of returning but inexperienced players to 20 wins, marking the first consecutive 20-win seasons in Navy Hockey history. Coach Fox was selected as one of eight coaches from across the country to coach at the World University Games tryout camp and assist in the selection of Team USA for the February 2009 games. He attributes his selection to his team's tremendous success but it comes as no surprise to Navy Hockey. The team sees his daily desire to teach his players, his focus on "team-first", and his determination to elevate hockey at the United States Naval Academy to the highest collegiate levels possible, as the reasons for his prestigious selection.

Given his background, it is not surprise that Coach Fox emphasizes the development of skills for team success. Coach Fox began skating on the frozen ponds of Minnesota at age three and played his first organized hockey in one of the nation's first and finest youth hockey programs, the Edina Hockey Association. Not long after, he played for Blake School, an institution steeped in hockey tradition. At Blake, he was a four-year letterman and team captain. Coach Fox often gives credit to Blake School for helping him to develop his hockey skills and for providing him with a top notch education. Between high school and college, he played for the Lancer's Team in the Olympic Development League and went on to become a four-year letterman for the Ohio University Bobcats, playing in the NCAA Division 1 CCHA League. Upon graduation, he was invited to the camp of the WHA's Minnesota Fighting Saints and played three years for the Saint Cloud Saints before becoming a Pee Wee coach in the Edina Hockey Association.

Coach Fox has a passion for the game that he loves to share. He has coached Squirt and Midget All-Star Select teams in Chicago, and a junior team in Fort Worth, Texas that was a State Champion and the Southwest Region runner-up. In addition, he has worked at hockey camps throughout the country with several very highly regarded hockey coaches, including Doug Woog and Dave Peterson.

When the Fox's moved to Annapolis, he continued his passion for the game by teaching skating lessons to children and power skating skills to local young players. With Lisa, his dedicated wife, the Fox's built the Navy Youth Hockey program into a strong and growing organization. Initially starting with about 30 players, they grew the program to over 180 before handing over the reigns. Today, Navy Youth Hockey has over 250 players and the program continues his philosophy of emphasizing skills and developing team work.

He and Lisa are very proud of their two children. Brittany, who just completed her first full year of Physicians Assistant School, graduated from the University of Notre Dame where she played NCAA Division I Lacrosse on a team that went to the NCAA Final Four. Christopher graduated from Culver Military Academy where he played hockey and captained the State Champion lacrosse team. He is currently a student at Salisbury University, where he plays on the hockey team.

The Fox's are grateful for their exposure to the United States Naval Academy, the Brigade of Midshipmen, and the tradition and values the institution represents. They look forward to another exciting and successful Navy Hockey season.

Jon Mahaffee, Assistant Coach

Jon Mahaffee was born in Annapolis, Maryland and played high school hockey for Archbishop Spalding where he helped lead the team to their first ever state championship. During his freshman year of college, he played at ACHA Division 1 Duquesne University before transferring to Towson University where he played three seasons as a standout, physical, and tough stay-at-home defenseman. While at Towson, he played in two conference championship games and two national tournaments.

In his first year with the club, Coach Mahaffee brings an impressive resume and record of success to the Navy Hockey program. After his January 2005 graduation from Towson, he began his coaching career as an assistant coach during the 2006-2007 season at Walter Johnson High School in Montgomery County, Maryland. That season, Walter Johnson had an undefeated regular season and went on to become the Montgomery County Public High School League Champions. At the start of the 2007-2008 season, he was hired as the head coach for his alma mater, Towson University, inheriting a program that was 3-25-1 during the previous season. During the first season under his leadership, Towson recorded a record of 12-14-1 and won the 2008 Navy Crab Pot Tournament over host Navy by a score of 4 to 1. For his efforts, he was named the runner up for 2007-2008 ECHA Coach of the Year and was nominated for ACHA Division 1 Coach of the Year. Last year, during his second year at Towson, the team improved to 19-13-2, notching key wins over #8 Kent State and a three game sweep of #20 West Virginia. He was named as the 2008-2009 ECHA Coach of the Year and was again nominated for ACHA Division 1 Coach of the Year. In addition, he was selected as an assistant coach for the 2009 ACHA Division 1 All Star Game in Wooster, Ohio. During his two years at the helm at Towson, the team recorded an overall record of 31-27-3.

Coach Mahaffee has a reputation of being a very energetic, intense, and motivating coach who takes a no-nonsense approach to the game. He expects all of his players to pride themselves in team defense and he constantly preaches team discipline. During his coaching career, he has had a knack for turning around struggling programs. An Anne Arundel County Police Officer, he resides in Crofton, Maryland with his fiancée Susan.

LT Matty Thomas, Assistant Coach

LT Matty Thomas enters his first year on the Navy Hockey staff. A native of Bow, New Hampshire, he was co-captain of the Navy Hockey team, All-League selection, and 4-year letter winner.

Upon graduation in 2005, he reported to USS MONTEREY (CG 61) where he served as Strike Officer and Main Propulsion Division Officer. His next tour was onboard the USS ELROD (FFG 55) where he served as Damage Control Assistant. Currently, he is stationed in Washington DC at Military Sealift Command Headquarters, serving as Battle Watch Captain in the Global Command Information Center.

Prior to entering the Naval Academy, LT Thomas attended St. Paul's School in Concord, NH, where he was a standout hockey and lacrosse player. Initially a lacrosse recruit at Navy, he joined the team after Christmas break of his plebe year and quickly became a key player during his four year career.

His brother Andrew won an NCAA title at Denver University and United States Hockey League title for the Waterloo Blackhawks. A 2004 draft pick of the Washington Capitals, he currently plays professional hockey for the Trenton Devils of the East Coast Hockey League.

Brendan Curley, Assistant Coach

Brendan Curley returns to the Academy for his 8th year as an assistant coach. This season he will be coaching specialty teams as well as strength and conditioning. Brendan brings an impressive background to Navy Hockey. Out of Canisius High School in Buffalo, New York, Brendan played Division I hockey at Miami of Ohio of the CCHA, where he helped his team win the CCHA championship in 1993. Brendan later played two full seasons with the Hampton Road Admirals in the ECHL, where he led the team in assists as a rookie. Brendan holds a Bachelor of Science degree in English and Journalism. He is employed by Accenture in sales and business development within the Web/Digital space. Brendan and his wife Alexis have two children Lindsay and Katelyn and reside in Annapolis.

Scott Steele, Assistant Coach

Scott Steele returns to the Academy for his 3rd year as an assistant coach. A native of Apple Valley, Minnesota, Scott began playing hockey at age 7 with various traveling youth hockey programs including the Bloomington Beltline and Apple Valley Phantoms. He was a varsity team captain and four-year letterman at Apple Valley and Rosemount High Schools. Scott started in the Central Hockey League with the Sioux City Mustakeers at age 18 and continued to play several years with the St. Paul Saints and Mohawk Valley Stars. Scott and his wife of 14 years, Karen, have two daughters, Samantha (11) and Sarah (7), and reside in Annapolis.

Commander Patrick Murray, USN Officer Representative

CDR Patrick Murray, a native of Hingham, Massachusetts, graduated from USNA in 1988 and is currently serving as the Deputy Director of the Naval Academy's Division of Mathematics and Science.

After commissioning, he qualified as a Surface Warfare Officer and later became a Special Duty Naval Oceanographer.

During his naval career, he has served in multiple tours at sea, including wartime deployments in support of DESERT STORM in the early 90's and ENDURING FREEDOM in support of the Global War on Terrorism. Ashore, he has served as an Oceanography Operations Officer in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii and on the staff of the Oceanographer of the Navy in Washington, DC. Before returning to the Naval Academy, he served as the Commanding Officer of the Naval Pacific Meteorology and Oceanography Center and the Naval Oceanography Antisubmarine Warfare Center Yokosuka, Japan.

CDR Murray grew up playing youth hockey outside of Boston, Massachusetts and went on to play high school hockey for his hometown team, the Hingham Harbormen. He continued his hockey playing days at USNA where he was a four-year letterman as a forward on the Navy Hockey Team from 1984-1988. Later, as a junior officer, CDR Murray served as a seamanship, navigation, and leadership instructor, in the Naval Academy's Division of Professional Development. During that tour, he had the opportunity to continue his involvement with Navy Hockey, serving as an assistant coach from 1992-1994.

CDR Murray and his wife Stacey live in Annapolis and have two boys: Jack 10, and Sam 8.

Lieutenant Allen Murphy Assistant Officer Representative

Lieutenant Allen Murphy grew up in Hancock, Maryland and graduated from the U.S. Naval Academy in 2005 with a B.S. in History. After commissioning in May of 2005, he reported to the USS INGRAHAM (FFG-61) where he served as Main Propulsion Division Officer, First Lieutenant, and Damage Control Assistant, completing one deployment in support of the Global War on Terrorism. Lieutenant Murphy next served as Navigator on board USS CARNEY (DDG 64). During this tour, the ship completed one deployment in support of the Global War on Terrorism and was awarded the Battle "E". Lieutenant Murphy is currently serving as a Leadership Instructor at the U.S. Naval Academy and is pursuing an M.B.A. from the University of Maryland's Smith School of Business. Lieutenant Murphy is engaged to Ms. Casey M. Breslin, PhD, of Hagerstown, Maryland.

ETC (SW/AW) David G. Jackel, USN Enlisted Representative

Chief Jackel is a native of West Mifflin, PA and a graduate of West Mifflin Area High School. He enlisted in the United States Navy on September 21, 1995. In September of 2008, he reported to Naval Academy where he is currently assigned as the Senior Enlisted Leader for 29th Company.

Upon completion of his initial training in Great Lakes, IL, he reported to USS Constellation (CV-64) in San Diego, CA and completed two Western Pacific / Arabian Gulf deployments in support of OPERATION SOUTHERN WATCH. His next duty assignment took him home to Pittsburgh where he was stationed at Naval Recruiting District Pittsburgh's Monroeville Recruiting Station serving as a Recruiter and Recruiter-In-Charge, earning Sailor of the Quarter honors. After his recruiting duty, he returned to sea aboard USS Bulkeley (DDG-84) where he was involved anti-piracy operations, serving in multiple Boarding Team positions during deployments to the Arabian Gulf and Horn of Africa regions in support of OPERATION ENDURING FREEDOM. During his tour on Buckley he helped the ship win the illustrious USS Arizona Memorial Trophy for being the most battle ready ship in the Fleet and he was named as the ship's Sailor of the Year.

Chief Jackel was promoted to his current rank in 2007. He is married to his high school sweetheart Taleesha and they have 2 children; Kada- 9 and Max- 5.

Dr. Joshua J. Radice, Faculty Representative

Dr. Joshua James Radice is an Assistant Professor in the Mechanical Engineering Department and is in his second year as Faculty representative for the team. He came to Annapolis by way of General Electric-Middle River Aircraft Systems where he served as Senior Research and Development Engineer, and from the University of Michigan where he served as an Adjunct Professor in the Mechanical Engineering department and as a Post-Doctoral Researcher in the Smart Materials and Structures Laboratory.

A native of Port Jefferson, New York, Radice grew up all over the world as a United States Air Force child, with his father's military career keeping the family constantly on the move. Dr. Radice graduated from the University of Delaware in 1998, with a Bachelor's Degree in Mechanical Engineering. After a four year stint with Goodrich Aerospace as a Materials Research and Development Engineer, Radice returned to the University of Delaware to complete his PhD in Mechanical Engineering.

Jim Guiberson, Director of Game Day Operations

Jim Guiberson is serving his second season as Director of Game Day Operations for the Navy Hockey Program. In this capacity, he is responsible for maintaining the equipment, writing materials for the media guide, maintaining the official scoresheet for all home games, running the scoreboard, and assisting the team and hockey program in various other capacities during the season. Jim, a 2000 West Chester University graduate, lives with his wife, Lindsay, in Annapolis, MD.

Lindsay Guiberson, Head Manager

Lindsay Guiberson is this year's Head Manager. She supervises all the managers and ensures the rink is ready for all practices and games. Born in Bethlehem, PA before moving to Annapolis at the age of two, she is the team's resident skate sharpening expert. Lindsay has been attending Navy Hockey games since she was nine and has been assuming a larger role with the team during the last several years. In addition to her team duties, she is also acts as a "sponsor-Mom" for several of the players. She and her husband, Jim, live in Annapolis, MD.

Ray Feldmann, Public Information Officer

Ray Feldmann returns for his eighth season as the team's Public Information Officer, after taking one year off following the birth of his twins. As PIO, Ray works closely with the USNA sports information office to help bring positive attention and recognition to the Academy's hockey program and its student athletes. Ray joined the Navy hockey program as PIO midway through the 2001-2002 season, and served in that role throughout the next six campaigns before his one year "leave of absence" from the program in 2008-09.

Away from the rink, Ray is a senior public relations manager with a strategic communications consulting firm based in Anne Arundel County. Previously he was chief of media relations and communications for the Washington, D.C. Metro system, and served as an assistant press secretary, deputy press secretary, and press secretary under two Maryland governors. Ray was also a sports-writer for several daily and weekly newspapers, including the former Baltimore News American.

Ray graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree in mass communications from Towson University, where he also worked as an assistant sports information director. He has guest lectured at Towson University, University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins University, and Anne Arundel Community College. He has successfully completed several advanced leadership courses, as well as terrorism recognition and reaction training.

Ray and his wife Christine reside in the Annapolis area with their twins, Connor and Grace.

Rich Moesch, Strength and Conditioning Coach and Internet Broadcast

Rich Moesch serves as the team's strength and conditioning coach and as one half of the internet broadcast team. A retired Navy Corpsman, Rich worked as an athletic trainer for many years before leaving the Navy. After a four year break while living in the sunny hills of northern Minnesota, he returned to the team two years ago. Rich, his wife Penny and kids look forward to another exciting and successful year with Navy Hockey.

Don Preul, Internet Broadcast

Don Preul is in his second year as the color man for the Navy Hockey internet broadcast. Away from the rink, he is the Curator of Ship Models at the newly renovated USNA Museum in Preble Hall. An avid supporter of the Navy Hockey program, Don looks forward to another exciting year of Navy Hockey. He resides in Annapolis, just minutes from McMullen Arena.

Cassie Hodgin, Athletic Trainer

Cassie Hodgin, a native of Olympia, Washington, is in her first season as the Athletic Trainer for the Navy Hockey team. A 2009 Washington State University graduate and certified intern, she ensures the players are provided with top-notch medical assistance at all practices and games, and coordinates all necessary treatments and therapies for the players away from the rink.

Friends of Navy Hockey

As the Navy Hockey team started its play informally on an Annapolis area pond in the late 1960s, so The Friends of Navy Hockey (FNH) began in the early 1990s as an informal support organization of former hockey-playing alumni giving freely of their time to support the team. That early effort has now evolved into today's alumni-led organization which directly supports all aspects of the team's operation and development. These contributions range from fundraising, to equipment and uniform purchases, informal recruiting through a player alumni and player parent network, annual publication of a media guide and schedule poster, and other projects as requested by the coaching staff, officer representative and the team itself. Every year former player alumni from around the world come to the Academy for the Alumni Hockey Game Weekend, a tribute to the current team from the Long Blue Line of hockey graduates. The format has expanded from a single hockey game to include a golf tournament and our own seating area for the Navy football game. The goal of FNH is to help Navy Hockey become the best collegiate hockey program possible, and to support the development of the team to whatever competitive level Academy officials and the Naval Academy Athletic Association determine appropriate. That hockey is a genuine warrior sport is beyond question. The sport has been played at West Point and the Air Force Academy at the NCAA Division I Level for generations. FNH recognizes that, in continuing to develop the Navy Hockey program, our organization will in turn allow our alma mater to welcome more of the talented and brightest as they reach college age and seek a forum for their hockey talents. Their follow-on careers will benefit from the skills learned on the ice - intense team play, quick decisions, a total commitment to victory - all directly applicable to the warfare specialties of today's naval and Marine officers.

Navy Hockey Celebrates 40th Anniversary

By Ray Feldmann

The U.S. involvement in the Vietnam conflict had not yet ended. American men and boys were going off to war and -- just as they are doing today in equally dangerous places not far from southeast Asia -- making the ultimate sacrifice for their country.

A gallon of gasoline ran about 40 cents. A postage stamp cost eight cents. A movie ticket was $1.50. "Love Story" and "Summer of '42" were box office hits then. Walt Disney World opened in Florida, and Apollo 14 landed on the moon. Watergate was just a hotel on the Washington, D.C. waterfront.

And on the banks of the Severn River, and in a sports arena 29 miles away from Annapolis, a tradition was taking shape. It began inauspiciously, with a meeting of a group of enthusiastic Midshipmen in a small room inside massive Bancroft Hall at the U.S. Naval Academy just before Christmas 1970. Soon thereafter, in the winter of 1971, what we know now as "Navy Hockey" was born on a sheet of ice at the old Washington Coliseum in northeast Washington, D.C., not far from Union Station.

Considering that hockey is known by many to be the ultimate warrior sport, it's no surprise then that Navy's hockey program was started by a 1971 grad who later became a United States Marine.

"I remember we had our first organizational meeting in December of 1970, during which we gained acceptance into the Chesapeake Hockey League," recalled Col. Mel DeMars, USMC (Ret.). "We had our first tryouts and practices in January 1971, cutting down to a 16-man roster. Practice games were played in January, and our first 'league' game was in February against the University of Maryland."

Like it was yesterday, Col. DeMars remembers that Navy's first goal -- the team was actually called "Annapolis Hockey Club" then because the USNA Administration had not yet sanctioned the team as an official club sport -- was scored by Ryan Cramer, class of '73.

"Ryan scored again a few minutes later to give us a 2-0 lead," Col. DeMars said. "Maryland went ahead 3-2 in the remaining two periods. With a minute and 40 seconds to go in the final period, we took a holding penalty, putting us shorthanded for the remainder of the game.

"With 30 seconds remaining," he continued, "we sent John Dillingham in for Paul Danks, who had been left on the ice as one of our best shorthanded players. With only 20 seconds to go, Dillingham, Joe Sweeney, and John Lucy took the puck down the ice after defenseman Mike Smiley dug it out of our corner. Sweeney, out of the left corner, sent a beautiful centering pass to Dillingham, who put a backhand past their goaltender with only 10 seconds showing on the clock."

In their first ever game, the Midshipmen had rallied to tie the Terrapins, 3-3.

"We were pretty ecstatic," Col. DeMars noted with pride. "Why were we ecstatic with a tie? Because it was a first league game, against an established team who was 20 games into the season, and we had come back in the final minute, despite being a man down."

As is true with every Navy athletic team today, just as it was then in the winter of '71, the Mids never quit. They never surrendered, no matter what the odds. They did whatever it took to get the job done.

A few months later, the Annapolis Hockey Club concluded its inaugural season with a 7-1 win over the CHL's B Division champions, the Baltimore National Brewers, at the old Baltimore Civic Center -- then home to the American Hockey League's Baltimore Clippers. The lopsided Annapolis Hockey Club win was witnessed by the wife of the Naval Academy's 46th Superintendent, Rear Admiral James F. Calvert.

"A week or so prior to graduation, I was called by our officer representative, Lt. Bill Hogan, over to the Administration building next to the Chapel," Col. DeMars recalled. "At that time, Lt. Hogan showed me the artist's and architectural drawings for the rink to be constructed in Dahlgren Hall. I believe Mrs. Calvert was influential in the process.

"Needless to say, I was pretty thrilled," he added. "When I graduated in June of 1971, we had an approved club team and a commitment of some funding, a slot in a league, an officer rep, a coach, and a facility in the design stages."

After two seasons (1970-71 and 1971-72), the Annapolis Hockey Club officially became known as the Navy Hockey Club in 1972-73.

Some 39 seasons have passed since that first team meeting and those initial games at the Washington Coliseum, Baltimore Civic Center, and other local venues including the Orchard Ice Rink in Towson and Meadowbrook Ice Rink in Baltimore.

During those ensuing seasons, the Mids practiced and began playing games at Dahlgren Hall. During those years, Dahlgren was packed several rows deep with Midshipmen and other local hockey fans. Those spectators were treated to an all-college schedule that featured Penn State, Delaware, Drexel, Pitt, Rutgers, Ramapo, and the Coast Guard Academy. One year, Navy played arch-rival Army at West Point.

Eventually, hundreds of hockey games were played in historic Dahlgren Hall, located within walking distance of gate #1 on the Naval Academy campus (known as The Yard). Despite its small locker rooms, dim lighting, overhanging balcony, advancing age, and antiquated amenities, Navy players, coaches, and fans unanimously agree: the old rink had character.

One of the most significant developments in Navy's distinguished 40-year history occurred during the 1977-78 season. Steve Gordon, a local businessman, Northeastern University graduate, and then a Navy hockey coach approached the Academy with a unique idea: Why not create an Annapolis, Maryland hockey tournament similar to the Beanpot hockey tournament held every year in Boston, Massachusetts.

Since 1952, four Boston area teams -- Northeastern, Harvard, Boston University, and Boston College -- have played in the Beanpot Tournament at the Boston Arena, the Boston Garden and now the TD Banknorth Garden.

"I thought we could have the same kind of tournament at Navy," Steve Gordon recalled, "so I went to the Academy with the idea. It seemed like a perfect fit. I knew we could make it a successful tradition here."

So in February 1978, the Crabpot Tournament was born. Navy has claimed the tournament trophy 10 times, the last time coming in 2006. Through the years, numerous out-of-state teams have participated in the tournament along with local rival Towson University. Two years ago, in 2007-08, Steve Gordon's original vision of having four local teams vie for the trophy finally came to fruition when Navy hosted Towson, the University of Maryland, and the University of Maryland-Baltimore County (UMBC).

This February, the Mids will do battle with Towson, Maryland, and Salisbury University for the 33rd annual Crabpot Tournament championship.

In the mid-1990's, USNA alums Marty Carpenter ('70) and Bruce Valley ('66) launched a booster club type organization to help support the Navy hockey program. By the late 1990's, this fledgling organization had essentially been folded into the Friends of Navy Hockey (FNH), which was led at that time by CEO Allen Bass and president

Tom Quirk. Soon thereafter, Bruce Valley became FNH President, a position he successfully held until Rob Ferguson ('71) took the helm in 2006. One year later, Valley returned for a brief four-month stint until Mike Budney ('80) was named president in December 2007.

"The goal of FNH is to help Navy Hockey become the best collegiate hockey program possible," said current FNH president Budney, "and to support the development of the team to whatever competitive level Academy officials and the Naval Academy Athletic Association deem appropriate."

For most of its recent hockey history, Navy played its game at Dahlgren Hall and competed in the Eastern Collegiate Hockey Association (ECHA). Several years ago, then-New Jersey Devils owner John McMullen (USNA class of '40) made a sizeable financial contribution to the Academy for construction of a new hockey rink for the Mids. The Naval Academy Athletic Association, under the leadership of Athletic Director Chet Gladchuk, sought and obtained the additional funding to construct such a facility.

In the fall of 2007, the Naval Academy dedicated and opened the Thornton D. and Elizabeth S. Hooper Brigade Sports Complex, which includes the Dr. John J. McMullen Hockey Arena and the Tose Family Tennis Center. The 2007-08 Midshipmen not only christened the new rink, but also made their debut in a newly created Eastern States Collegiate Hockey League (ESCHL), consisting of Delaware, Drexel, Penn State, Rhode Island, and, this season, West Chester in addition to Navy.

In retrospect, it was a time of total transition for the hockey program. Charismatic coach Rick Randazzo, who earned 132 victories in eight seasons behind the bench, had stepped down and was replaced by his longtime assistant coach, Mike Fox. Starting the 2007-08 season, Navy had a new coach, a new building, and a new league.

In that inaugural campaign, Navy won 20 games for the second consecutive season. Last year, in their second full season in the new arena and the new league, the Mids finished with 15 wins.

This 2009-10 season marks the 40th season of competitive hockey at the Academy, and no one is prouder of that achievement than coach Fox.

"There are a lot of outstanding traditions here at the Naval Academy," coach Fox said, "and the hockey program is among the best of them. I am both proud and honored to be serving as head coach in our 40th season. We are going to do everything we can to put a quality team on the ice for each and every game to bring further pride to the Navy hockey program, the Brigade of Midshipmen, the Academy community, and the city of Annapolis."
