I've never skated synchro before. Can I still try out for a team?

Absolutely! All of our skaters were new to the sport at some point, and they are very enthusiastic to welcome new members to the team. We recommend attending the clinic for your skating level before your tryout date so that you can become comfortable with the synchro elements and style of skating.

Can I still make progress in my individual skating if I skate synchro?

Yes! In fact, we've seen that most of our skaters make MORE progress while skating synchro than they would have otherwise. Simply put, they spend more time on the ice, focus on strength and extension, and become more comfortable performing in front of large groups. Additionally, they are often more motivated to continue setting goals and passing tests when they see their teammates moving through the levels.

What is the synchro "season"?

Our practices run from September to mid-February, with pre-season practices in April, May, and June, and a choreography boot camp for most teams in August. Most competitions are scheduled for November through February. In March, we start clinics and tryouts for the following season. Many of our skaters plan on taking advantage of the summer synchro opportunities offered by US Figure Skating.

Where do you practice?

We train in New York City at Sky Rink at Chelsea Piers and Bryant Park. Our IJS qualifying-level teams also train at Ice House in Hackensack. Families generally carpool or take a team bus to out of town competitions.

Where do you compete and perform?

We compete across the Northeast! In the past few seasons, we have traveled to Connecticut, Massachusetts, Virginia, upstate New York, and even have a competition at our home rink in NYC. In addition, we often to perform at some of the most beautiful rinks in the city and have had multiple TV appearances.

How much travel is involved?

Our teams compete in 4-5 competitions during the season, some of which require an overnight stay. Traveling with friends and teammates is a very memorable part of the CP Ice experience! Obviously, there was no travel during the 2020-2021 season due to the pandemic, but most of our lines were still able to participate in competitions via virtual events!
