

Week 7 Update

Squirt White – John Smith

No games

Squirt Red – Brady Butenhoff

On Saturday Squirt Red travelled to Detroit Lakes to face the Lakers.

The Angels started off the game by falling behind by a score of 3-0. The Angels got one back after Elliott Butenhoff scored, assisted by Ryker Grinaker. The Lakers led 3-1 one.

The Lakers started off the second by scoring the period's first goal taking a 4-1 lead. Eli Emineth scored half way through the period with an assist going to Colton Stewart. The Lakers would answer late in the second to take a 5-2 lead into intermission.

The start of a wild third period began with Eli Emineth scoring, with assist going to Colton Stewart and Ryker Grinaker. The Lakers would get the next 2 taking a 7-3 lead. The Angels went on the power play with just over 8 minutes left. The Angels pulled the goalie for most of the final 8 min. Eli Emineth scored to cut the lead to 7-4. He would score 2 more times to cut the lead to 7-6. The Lakers added an empty net goal to make it an 8-6 game. Elliott Butenhoff scored with :13 remaining. After a mad scramble at the end, the Angels fell just short, losing 8-7. Player of the game went to Ryker Grinaker.

PeeWee White – John Smith

No games

PeeWee Red – Jeremy Elbert

No games

Bantam White – Derek Sunderland/Mike Gallagher

Bantam White had one game this weekend, a league game in Minot. Despite the winter weather warnings and only having 7 skaters available, the team made the trip. When Minot said they were missing 5 skaters, we assumed numbers would be similar, until we realized they have 19 on their roster!

Coach Berg employed a defensive game strategy of dump and chase, hoping to end with a tie and maybe a victory in overtime. Despite long shifts and playing new positions, the boys controlled the game by outshooting the Wolves 26-15. A power play goal with 5 minutes left in the 3rd period by Mehus decided the game. Walter played outstanding in the net. With the win, Bantam White is 7-2-0 in league play and is tied for 2nd place in the East.

Bantam White travels to Northwood and Crookston next weekend.

Bantam Red – Steve Cassola

No games