ELITE LEVEL DEVELOPMENT FOR PLAYERS DRIVEN TO COMPETE AND EXCEL

Hello,

What an exciting fall for our family. First, my nephew and longtime Cali*Lax ALL-STAR Treysen Stewart went on visits to Yale, UPenn, Dartmouth and Cornell. He ended up committing to Cornell.

My daughter Taylor, committed to Loyola University Maryland, a program consistently ranked in the top 10 in the NCAA. I chose to develop Taylor differently than most American players. Living in Santa Cruz, a place with very little lacrosse, we knew we had to focus on developing her Box Lacrosse skills if she wanted to play at an elite level. We always prioritized the development that Cali*Lax ALL-STARS provides and scheduled all field events around it. Even during her recruiting year our priorities were different than most in the 2025 class. They were:

- 1) Do Cali*Lax ALL-STARS schedule and focus on development
- 2) make the Team Canada U20 training team
- 3) get recruited to a school on her list

Instead of having Taylor compete against hundreds of thousands of girls in the USA playing field, we had her compete against the hundred or so playing box, learning unique skills, confidence and a mind set that set her apart on the field. During Taylor's college visits, every NCAA coach complemented Taylor on her box skills and commented on how those skills would translate into success during her college career.

Taylor was selected to the Team Canada U20 training team and competed last weekend in the Fall Classic against the reigning NCAA Champions, Northwestern. My wife and I watched as a skinny 16-year-old girl from Santa Cruz scored 2 goals (some highlights) against a powerhouse team that includes Izzy Scane, the current Tewaaraton award recipient. The next day she played a half vs San Diego State and scored 2 more goals.

As our focus shifts even more towards getting Taylor on the field at Loyola in 2 years we've added more box lacrosse opportunities for her. We hope you'll join us with Cali*Lax ALL-STARS as there is nothing better to develop your game and become an elite level player.

See you soon!

Shaydon Santos
