Program Details

From this final tryout process, a short-list of players will be selected to train during the upcoming Fall and Winter months. These training sessions will be held both on a weekly individual regional level (Western, Central and Eastern locations) as well as a monthly team provincial level (Eastern location). In the spring of 2021, these players will also be committed to provincial and regional training as well as provincial and out-of-province competition sessions, as they compete for one of the final 18 age-eligible and two overage roster spots. The final roster will be selected in the April/May timeframe, and the 20 players selected to the final roster will participate in team provincial level training and competition, both in- and out-of-province, in preparation for the 2021 Canada Games.

As part of the preparation process, the short-listed players will also be expected to participate in team-regulated fitness, nutrition and mental training programs, as well as fund-raising events that will assist in offsetting training, competition and equipment costs for the program.

As 2020 has already shown, the world can change in a minute. And sadly, no one could predict how the Covid-19 pandemic would affect the baseball world this past summer. While the above generally outlines the final steps of the three-year 2021 Canada Games Program, there are finer details that are still being finalized within these steps as the program works through Covid-19. Unfortunately, the uncertainties and challenges are still present as the program moves forward towards the 2021 Canada Games, and this might mean that there may be more changes to come and program details may have to be adjusted along the way. However, the 2021 Canada Games coaching staff is committed in its preparation for the Ontario-based Canada Games next August.

With this in mind, the coaching staff encourages all eligible players with the interest and commitment to compete in the most prestigious youth amateur sporting event in Canada to come out and tryout.

The coaching staff for the 2021 Canada Games Program is David Coates of Conception Bay South, with assistant coaches Kevin Higgins of Gander and David McCarthy of Corner Brook. The Team Manager is Tony Janes of Mount Pearl.
