BY MICHAEL PARFITT - COLORADO FLAG FOOTBALL CORNER

We want to welcome all the teams to the PF3's Best of the Best VII tournament. This is already shaping up to be the best one yet with 20 teams vying for the Pro Championship and a cash prize. One thing we know for sure is we'll have a brand new champion as none of our previous champions are in this year's tournament. Out of the 20 teams, we have 7 new to the tournament. Six teams are from the PF3 A League while five are from the PF3 B League. Four Colorado Springs teams are making the 45min drive north to see what all the talk is about. To round it out, we have five out of state teams. Right now the feeling is the Bros, CTS, Arizona Union, and EA Strays are the favorite's to bring home the ship but you never know how the tournament will play out. This year we'll have the Pro and Comp brackets on Sunday meaning sixteen teams will continue to ball out on Sunday. Let's make sure we all play with integrity, good sportsmanship, and keep building this tournament as the best in the country. Thank you once again to all the teams, Jesse Eaton, and Cory Julliard for making this tournament happen.

Fresh off their 7th PF3 league Championship, CTS will be looking to add their first Best of the Best tournament championship to their trophy case. They definitely have the talent and experience to do just that. CTS could arguably be Colorado's top team. One huge reason for being so highly thought of is in large part due to their defensive prowess. Locking down the back end is PF3's interceptions record holder Jason Davis. The defense isn't made up of just one dude they also have defensive captain Scott O'Hara. O'Hara seems to be able to do it all from rushing the passer to covering. With or without Scotty, the pass rush will be a daunting task with Anthony Clayton and newer addition Mike Timm hunting the opposing QB down. Timm is tied for the PF3's sack record at 17. Of course CTS isn't just a defensive team, they can put up the points which is why they are one of the best. Dual threat QB Duece Richardson is the full package. If you give him running lanes he'll eat up the yards while he leaves everyone in his wake. If teams take away the running lanes he has a multitude of receiving options. One addition to his already stacked receiving options is speedster Julian Banks. Banks can play almost any position on offense while also playing great ball on the defensive side. Mitch Colin is CTS's top receiver who runs precise routes and will come down with the jump ball about 80% of the time. Of course none of this would be possible without a great O-line and teams in the tournament should be aware that CTS has just that. Their normal O-line is great with Nate Grooms, Mike Lanford, Takeyon Harrison, and James Holmes but now they've added Huskers stud lineman Caddy Mauga. Just thinking about it, this could quite possibly be in the best O-line conversation of the Colorado teams. Once again we should see CTS in the Pro bracket and making a run at the championship. Wouldn't it be something if it was an all Colorado championship, CTS vs Bros, again for a championship?

The Runner-ups from last year are returning to change that runner-up title to Champion. Of course it won't come easy but Arizona Union definitely has the team to accomplish the feat. Contrary to "popular" perception, Arizona Union is no push over team. AZ Union will be bringing some bling with them as they won the Battle World's in the 5 man contact division which showcased a lot of the same players who will be making the trip to Best of the Best. It pains me to say but not one Colorado team was able to beat Union in last year's Best of the Best. Damion Kindle will once again be... well, Damion Kindle. He'll be sure to try and get into others head all while bringing a good bull rush when he lines up at DE. Alongside DK, will be Josh Hendricks who is a great play making linebacker. Hendricks is very physical and is an absolute dog. Their offense is multifaceted with the capability to run traditional or spread it out. When going traditional, Ernie Bailey is incredibly tough to get by. Of course when they decide to run, you need to keep your head on a swivel because Ernie will be looking to serve some pancakes. He could have possibly lead the tournament last year in pancakes (thankfully I wasn't hungry enough to get any). Pounding the rock will be Tazyzo Orr, who is a home run threat when he gets the ball. Running at QB this year for Arizona will be Julian Madison. Likely on the receiving end of a chunk of the touchdowns will be Jordan Harrison. Harrison has a ridiculous vertical and his one handed catches make Odell Beckham look like a chump. Oh by the way Harrison and Devonte' Nelson at slot will be "dipping dots" all over the field. To sum it up these guys are a real threat for the Pro championship. They are pretty much a shoe in for the Pro bracket.

Making their way all the way from Georgia is the EA Strays. First, I'll say welcome to the Best of the Best tournament. This is a fairly young team as they were established Dec 1, 2016, however, in their first year they traveled to Orlando and won the Battle Nationals. This is a very hungry team that is looking to gain national respect. Teams should be on the lookout for Chris "Showtime" Williams to live up to his nickname at the Wide Receiver position. Once the Strays are on defense, quarterbacks will need to be on the lookout for pass rusher William Howard. He's a great combination of speed and technique which help him to beat the brakes off offensive linemen. William Howard ran with Georgia United for a bit so he is no stranger to go against the best. There is no way a team from Georgia will be making the trip unless they are stacked with speed and talent. I'd be expecting an insane pass rush from all over, those east coast teams know how to bring the heat. Of course as with all new out of state teams, how will the elevation affect them? Even when GU played their first year they felt the effects of the high altitude. I'll say this, everything people say about the elevation is not an understatement. My prediction is mid to late seed in the Pro bracket but definitely feeling the Mile High air.

This squad is quite possibly the deepest team in the tournament. I say this because two top tier PF3 teams combining in the Bros and Huskers. On the offensive side of the ball, they have three legit options to pick from to play QB. Donell Wells and Artie Barcelo are similar in style playing more of a backyard style rather than conventional scheme. Together they bring 8 total Atlas Awards (PF3 Top Season quarterback), including the last seven having been awarded to one of those guys. To go along with those two, they also have Mario Lopez, who was the Huskers QB this past PF3 season however his natural position is as a pass rusher. For the receivers, I'm not sure if I have enough space to mention everyone. Coming over to the Bros from Huskers will be Antoine Kelly, who can take any pass to the house from any spot on the field. Out jumping just about anyone will be Moss Henderson. Of course, among all the wide receivers the most over looked weapon is center Davaughn Thornton, who is a former CU Buffalo tight-end. With this offensive talent I can see them putting up around 30 points per game in the first three pool play games. Of course, teams can't win without a defense and this team should have one of the best. They will be entering the tournament with the best overall d-line, I'm almost willing to say ever in Colorado. Starting with the spring 2019 PF3 sack leader Koree Ross bringing a heck of a speed rush. His normal running mate is straight power and reminds me of Khalil Mack, Greg Jackson will be darn near impossible to block. Normally those two alone are a pain but throw in long time vet and great pass rusher Mario Lopez, who is technique and speed. Another Huskers player thrown into the mix who can play almost everywhere on defense, is Scotty Phillips. Rounding out this set of five pass rushers is DaJuan Thomas who is a perfect combination of power and speed. The Bros could quite possibly lead the tournament in sacks from this group, they are that good. To sum up, the Bros should be considered one of Colorado favorites to win the Pro bracket.

The Spokane Outlaws will be making their first appearance in the Best of the Best. Team manager Brooks Goff will be returning with his own team, after running with Cali Coalition last year. With excellent hand placement and standing at 6'6", Francis Depaolo and Ricky Jhalli hold down the offensive line from the tackle spots. Those sound like some tough boys to get around. Even if you're able to get past them, Travis Ward has nerves of steel standing in the pocket. The Outlaws have plenty of Best of the Best tournament experience on the team, as they picked up six Seattle Baddog players. One of those players is Mat Davis, who will play MLB. Davis has great field vision from his time playing safety at Oregon State. Along with Davis on defense, Goff will be bringing the heat on the d-line. As stated before, he played with Cali Coalition last year which is his normal traveling team. With that being said, he has plenty of experience in big tournaments and knows all the tricks to get past any offensive linemen. The Outlaws are considered the top team in the Northwest, owning Championships the last three years in Northwest Flag Championship tournaments in Eugene, OR. This squad prides themselves on their pass rush, which has the capability to beat traditional and spread teams. I'm going to say this right now, don't overlook this team. They are my dark horse going into the tournament and I won't be surprised if/when they make it to the Pro bracket on Sunday as a higher seed.

Making a rare appearance in the Best of the Best is Colorado's very own, Mile High Built. They'll be showcasing their always stingy defense with Keith Truitt locking down one corner spot and former NFL player Evan Frie bringing the pass rush. Frie brings a remarkable combination of strength, speed, and technique that will give offensive lineman headaches all day long. A huge addition for this team is Eric Brown, one of Colorado's most dynamic players. Brown will be lining up at DB but I'm sure he'll get some WR play too. On offense, Mile High Built has added long time legendary QB Derek "Doc" Holiday and PF3 record setting WR Anthony Rankin. The biggest question for MHB to answer is how smooth the transition will be from a spread scheme to a traditional one. The reason for the question is due to lack of O-linemen that MHB typically has. I'm sure Doc will do some convincing on bringing his former O-line to play for this tournament. Doc has been around the game for so long that nothing phases him. His poise is remarkable while he drops dimes to his receivers. Ross Alisiani will be one of those receivers. The big play may be there when teams fall asleep from the possession game that I'm sure they'll implement. Overall this is a very well balanced team that is looking for one of the eight pro bracket slots. I'd be shocked if they don't end up in the Pro bracket with the amount of talent and depth this team has.

Returning for their fourth Best of the Best appearance is the Utah Misfits. Last year they went 1-1-1 in pool play that earned them a #2 seed in the Comp Bracket. They wound up losing to Kryptonite in the first round. This team did however bounce back in January to win the Division 2 FlagMag World Championships. The captain of this squad is Dustin Heath who's also runs at QB for them. When I asked about his team he said he's still working on the squad and that their team name is rightfully fitting. Who he does know will be playing is Sean Gabaldon at Safety, Ima Polamalu at WR, and Braxton Weixler on the line. The last time I watched these guys, they had success with the double pass and spread system, which can give teams headaches. Depending on who else Dustin can pick up and how well they gel together will determine just how far they can go. In all reality with so many questions I'm fairly confident these guys won't be making it into the Pro bracket and would be more of a challenger for the Comp Bracket once again.

In terms of the team name, Menace is returning to the Best of the Best tournament. Last year Menace had combined with the Huskers to form a star studded team. Even without that merger, Colorado Menace is star studded on its own. The merger resulted in a Pro bracket appearance but fell to CTS by an extra point. The chemistry wasn't quite on target, but with Menace being back to their own team, that issue should be ironed out from the spring season. Leading the offense will once again be Jesse Eaton. Jesse had the spring season to get back to form, as he had multiple surgeries to recover from. He still has plenty of zip on his throws while getting the ball to his weapons such as Kyle Trinidad. Menace has also recently added multi-position athlete Andrew Bergner (a former CU defensive back) to that WR and DB rotation, which will only help their offense. Those WR's have the ability to take short passes to the house on any given play. Plenty of time should be had in the pocket as Jesse has arguably the best O-line in the state of Colorado. On defense Menace is as good if not better than before. They also still have the pass rush freak Donovan Haynes to snag those QB sacks. Of course they have a multitude of other pass rushers who will get the sack if Donovan doesn't. Menace will surely be a top tier seed and should make the Pro bracket. Of course once you get into the pro tournament, the outcomes start to come down to what your depth looks like. Fortunately for Menace they totally understand that and I will not be shocked if they show up with 30 guys, all of which can compete with the best. For that very reason they are one of the four or five teams that are my favorite to win it all.

When the Bulls registered, I was asked "who are the Bulls?" Well it is the NoCo Bulls combined with the Oilers, both from Colorado. With the talent that this team should have, they would be able to compete with most of the top teams. They'll have stud quarterback David Knighton tossing the rock. Knighton is spectacular at standing in the pocket regardless of the traffic around him. Some of his major targets will be 2019 PF3 Spring All-Pro receiver Josh Morris and top Oilers receivers Jalen Kittrell along with Dezant Burks. Morris also earned the 2019 PF3 Spring "Primetime" award for the top offensive production in the league. The merger will be interesting to see what positions certain guys will ultimately play. One positive from this merger will be the added depth but guys will need to set their egos aside while giving up some play time to make this work. I'm sure we'll all have to wait until the tournament to actually see what the Bulls actually do with everyone but what I'm anticipating is more Oilers on the defensive side while the offense is made up of more NoCo players. In years past there have been a couple of Colorado team mergers with mixed results. The key to success on this merger will dependant on how much chemistry the team can put together in a short time. I'd say both teams combine to boast top tier guys at just about every position except one: pass rusher. That is no slight against either teams pass rushers, who could be placed in the good but not great category. That "good" pass rush might be enough to get the job done, they just don't have that one single guy who can alter another team's game plan. Look for the Bulls to be in the thick of the Pro bracket race at the end of Saturday.

After taking a year off, the Colorado Springs VIP are making their way back to the Best of the Best tournament. Long considered the best Springs team mainly because they were the only team anyone heard of. Now they have some competition and have gone back and forth for their leagues championships. VIP have around 7 Colorado Springs league championships to their resume. Lead by long time veteran QB Juan Gallegos who brings a cannon for an arm. That is huge for getting the ball to very good WR Dezmond Tribble. Tribble will also play defensive back to give other wide outs a hard time. Lining up alongside Tribble at WR is Russell "Fluff" Curtis who is a speed demon. VIP runs a traditional offense and is well versed in that offense. The last time VIP played in Best of the Best they went 0-2-1 losing only by a combined 2 points to Rockers and CTS and tying the Utah Misfits. I'm viewing this team as a fringe Pro bracket/comp bracket team. I find it difficult to believe with their talent they'd go winless again. Regardless of the outcome, VIP will come away with the experience of playing top teams and the opportunity to play different teams rather than the same ones they've been playing.

The Wolfpack are one of the four Colorado Springs teams coming up for the tournament. A newer squad that was only established June of 2018. They will bring Mario Robinson, the former Intruders QB to guide their offense. Mario is another dual threat QB that will surely be keeping defenses on their heels. This is a team is a mixture of military personnel and civilians that share a passion for this great game. You know they won't be backing down from any challenges that come their way. They are still working towards winning a championship but why not make the Best of the Best their first. They'd do so with a more traditional offense but even if they fall short this will be a great learning experience. Hopefully the family mentality of this team can make some noise in the pool play. My prediction for this squad is that they'll show flashes of good play but ultimately fall short of the Pro bracket. They might get into the Comp Bracket but if they do I think it will be as a lower seed.

One of the few teams to make it in to every single Best of the Best is the Denver Rockers. Last year they surprised a lot of people when they delivered losses to Da Bears out of Utah, who had been in the finals the year prior and to the Noco Bulls who are a top team in Colorado. The only team the Rockers lost to in the entire tournament was Arizona Union. The 2 and 1 record earned them a spot in the pro tournament but fell a second time to AU by a slim margin. Armed with long time vets Pat Yanda, Spencer Schmittling, and Dave Luckey the Rockers boast plenty of experience. They've been infused with some young talent around them which has taken a few leagues to learn their role. Along with playing in multiple leagues in a week, the Rockers make out of state visits to Las Vegas for tournaments. Pat runs a tight ship when it comes to route running, so good thing he has some top notch route runners in Rob Galena, Richard Peterson, and Jerrad Burdick. Of course there is a long list of options for Pat but those are some of the main ones who will route darn near anyone. The key to success for the Rockers will be how the defense performs. Not known for spectacular defense, they do tend to surprise people on occasion. We shall see what kind of seeding they get, if it's based off last year's success then it should be a mid- high seeding. If it's off their lack of success from their PF3 performance in the fall then it will probably be a mid-lower seeding. I'm on the team so it's hard for me to stay objective on my prediction so I'll leave it at this is not a team to sleep on.

One of the top teams from Colorado Springs is finally making the trip north: The Long Island Raptors. I found out about this team last year at the Rocky Mountain State Games tournament, then called Rhinos, came away with the tournament win. Jordan Buss is the captain of the team and from what I've heard he is a stellar pass rusher. I would definitely be trying to keep an eye out for him. They have a strong defense, which they ride to victory. On offense you'll have to watch out for Keith Hittle at QB, whose game is comparable to former NFL QB Michael Vick. One of Hittle's weapons he'll be looking to get the ball to is WR Kevin Miller. They may not always put up the most points but that's because they are focused on taking care of the ball. These guys are coming in with championships in the Colorado Springs league in 2017 and 2018 along with the 2018 Turkey bowl tournament. While I hear there is some solid competition in The Springs, these guys don't seem to get the opportunity to play to many other teams. So you get to know your opponent and their tendencies. They won't have that luxury in this tournament as The Springs teams will be spread out in different pools. I'm interested in seeing how much depth this team will have as those first three games can be the nail in the coffin for teams without a solid number of players. I'm looking at this team as a team on the Fringe of making the Pro bracket but not a sure thing. Whatever their end results are: this isn't The Springs anymore, Toto.

Team Preview:

Making their second appearance in the Best of the Best, out of Colorado, is Kryptonite. In their first B.O.B appearance, the pool play didn't quite go as they had hoped going 0 and 3 on the day. They made up for it after being placed in the Comp bracket by beating the Utah Misfits in round one but lost to the eventual Comp champions the Seattle Baddogs. This year Kryptonite knows a little more of what to expect. Jovan Mays will be tossing the rock again for Kryptonite. He has a good arm and can fire it in to tight spaces but he will scramble if his first or second read aren't there. Kryptonite is built around having a strong defense to compliment the talents of Mays on the offensive side. Leading the way on defense is Captain Derek Watson and Steve Heit. Derek may be under sized but he flies around with reckless abandon. Steve Heit is the true definition of a middle linebacker, from his leadership to his physical play. Looking at Kryptonite honestly, they don't have the overall top tier talent to truly compete with the Pro squads but they are good enough to challenge for the comp championship. The lower seed that I'm anticipating they'll get will not do any favors in the pool play. Even though everyone plays to win the game, what Kryptonite should take away from the tournament is what schemes the top tier teams implement. They could find a way to use those very same schemes in their own system for league play and then come to next year's BOB that much better..

With a third straight showing the Disciples are looking to make strides from the previous two years. They used to go by The Alphas in previous years but it's close to the same team, just with added weapons. Once again, Dero Ard will lead his team from the quarterback spot. He can hurt teams with his legs along with his strong arm. The added running threat adds the option scheme to this dynamic offense. Newly transitioning RB Romain "Cornbread" Washington adds an x-factor as he can run the ball along with being a receiver from the backfield. They've also added a red zone receiver in 6'7" Shondell Lee. As of late the Disciples have been killing it on the defensive side with long time vet CB Michael Coleman being a thorn in wide receivers sides. They also have veterans Gary Simon and Stephen Husky holding the linebacker duties. This team gave the eventual B League champions the hardest time and barely lost to them. A lot of teams may overlook the Disciples which would be bad move. Still up and coming they could sneak into the Pro bracket but I'm anticipating a run at the Comp Bracket championship for these guys.

Make their Best of the Best debut is the Denver Lightning. This is one of PF3's Comp Division squads with aspirations of being a Pro Division team. Going up against the top tier teams in this tournament could help them get to their goal of winning the B league. Knowing this team from top to bottom, I'm not so sure they can match talent with talent straight up. One thing they do have up their sleeve is their spread offense, which will catch some teams off guard. While you try to figure out how to defend this special offense, they have already put up 20 points. The biggest key to success for Lightning comes on the defense's shoulders. Running the spread offense with precision is QB John Everhart. They'll rely heavily on the playmaking ability of Douglas Clinkscales, CJ Dixon, and Jalene Sampson. I'm questioning if they'll add more players before the tournament, as depth was an issue in the spring PF3 playoffs. All four players play on both sides of the ball. Defensive lineman Ben Butler is a handful to handle with his power. Ben will play offense but very sparingly due to the offensive scheme. With the questions surrounding the Lightning and limited tournament experience, making the Pro bracket will be an extremely tough task. What would be more realistic for them is to set their sights on, would be the Comp Bracket. That in its self isn't guaranteed as only the top 16 teams are set to make the bracket play on Sunday.

Returning for their second Best of the Best tournament is the Denver Chiefs. This squad was reluctant at first to register due to some questions surrounding their QB position. Well, with a little help from Georgia United's decision to not come out this year and my match making skills, they will have Best of the Best IV Champion, Offensive MVP and All-Tournament selection Will Franklin at QB. So that "small" addition should be quite helpful in their bid for the championship. This team isn't as stacked as his Georgia team but Kiko Zarate at WR will be a dangerous weapon at Franklin's disposal. Another good option at WR/RB will be LaPhonso Salas. The Chiefs finished the PF3 spring season as the #1 seed in B league with a record of 6 and 1. I'm not sure what kind of offense they'll implement especially with Will at QB, but their defense is more of a bend don't break. The biggest question will be: how will they handle going against a spread offensive scheme? These guys have played against top Colorado teams before and can put up points, but it was the defense that took some lashings. I'm guessing this team could put up a fight but, ultimately, I believe they'll be competing more in the Comp Bracket than the Pro bracket.

A late Colorado team addition of Sudden Impact helped in getting the Best of the Best tournament at a record 20 teams. Sudden Impact is one of the PF3's B League teams who compete season after season. Wes Olmsted has competed in the tournament on multiple teams so he knows what to expect. He can play multiple positions but most of the time he runs at LB. They've been looking for a true quarterback in league play for a little while but believe they have found the answer in lefty Andrez Gallion. Gallion comes with years of experience in 6man play style but finally decided to make the transition to 8man about a year or so ago. He still is learning the 8man game but mainly ironing out the finer details. He brings a dual threat for this offense but he prefers to throw the ball than run. One big weapon he'll have at his disposal will be Maurice Mansfield. Mansfield has played against some of the top teams in the state which is a huge benefit. The offensive line is anchored by Zach Hum. Zach isn't afraid of getting physical and does a good job of getting the snap off while blocking up the middle. In my eyes it's a long shot for Sudden Impact to make the Pro bracket but they have a decent shot at making the Comp bracket.

A late newcomer to the Best of the Best is the Las Vegas Misfits. Not much is known about this squad which is ran by Adam Aguilar. They do have a championship from last fall in one of the Las Vegas leagues that are ran at all American Football fields. They have a core that has been balling together since High school days. With so much unknown from this team I can't say I believe they'll be in the Pro bracket. I inquired about to some of Las Vegas's other top teams about the Misfits and they mentioned they believe they run a spread scheme. Another team said they aren't viewed as one of the top four or five teams in Vegas. So with that said this team could compete in the comp bracket, I guess you all will learn about this Misfits squad the same time I will be.

This team is still in its infancy, they've only played together for about a year now. Don't let that fool you because they are truly stacked with top tier talent. Coming from them, they say they're "the most talented team you'll come across." Hmmm, that's mighty high praise considering they haven't even seen some of the best teams in the state, let alone what some out of state teams bring to the table. They do boast very talented players with former Pro and college experience, along with other high level players. To my understanding, three brothers in Jeffrey, Jamil, and Keyshon Cooks run the team. Peak City is very team oriented and didn't have any one player they wanted to feature. I'd say be on the lookout for Jamil Cooks playing QB and defensive line. How far they will go will ultimately rest on Jamil's shoulders. Blocking for Jamil will be Kenyon Brantley, who at 6'2" and 280 lbs, is a beast. Brantley played College ball at Alcorn State. They sent me a roster of 12 guys but hopefully they add a few more guys, otherwise it will be a long day on Saturday. With the talent on this team, they could stay with some of the top teams but ultimately I feel the inexperience and possible lack of depth may be too much to overcome to make the pro bracket. They could very well compete for the Comp Bracket championship which is probably more realistic.

CODE OF CONDUCT

If benefits are to be derived from athletics, the highest standard of conduct and sportsmanship must be maintained. The conduct and sportsmanship of the players, coaches, and others associated with the Premier Flag Football Federation should be exemplary. Everyone participating should conduct themselves so that they are a credit to the sport.

Players and team representatives are to abide by, and follow the rules of the guidelines below.

- Encourage good sportsmanship from fellow players, team representatives, and officials at every game by demonstrating good sportsmanship.
- Treat team representatives, other players, officials and fans with respect regardless of race, sex, creed, or abilities.
- Do not engage in unsportsmanlike conduct with any team representative, player, league official, or any other attendee.
- Do not engage in any behavior which would endanger the health, safety, or well-being of a team representative, player, league official, or any other attendee.
- Do not engage in the use of profanity.
- Do not engage in verbal or physical threats or abuse aimed at any team representative, player, league official or any other attendee.
- Do not initiate a fight or scuffle with any team representative, player, league official, or any other attendee.
- If players or team representatives fail to abide by the above code of conduct they will be subject to disciplinary action that could include, but is not limited to the following:
 - Verbal warning by an official
 - Penalties by an official that may affect the outcome of a game
 - Suspension
 - Lifetime ban from all PF3 events (leagues and tournaments)

Players and team representatives must understand that they must uphold the PF3 Player Code of Conduct at all times. All players and coaches should know the importance of sportsmanship. In order to keep this league successful, and be able to secure our fields for years to come, this code of conduct must be strictly adhered to.

By receiving an invitation to play in a PF3 league/event please understand that it's because your team is not only talented, but has previously displayed a high standard of sportsmanship. Let's show everyone why they would want to compete in the Premier Flag Football Federation!

"Show class, have pride, and display character. If you do, winning takes care of itself."

FINES AND SUSPENSIONS

AURORA SPORTS PARK RULES & PF3 FINES / SUSPENSIONS FOR NOT COMPLYING

Aurora Sports Park has pointed out the following rules we need to stay on top of this weekend. Failure to comply could put a halt to our tournament, and we could also lose the right to play at Aurora Sports Park in the future. They really protect their fields so we need to do our part!

- 1. NO FIGHTING / NO POLICE CALLS – Aurora Sports Park requires us to fill out full names of each individual involved on an incident form. Their field managers are also required to call the police on every incident. Because incidents like these may cause us to lose these fields we are upping the suspensions and fines for those involved. Anyone caught fighting will be suspended from all PF3 events for 2 years, and fined $500.00! We know this is a long suspension and a heavy fine that will probably never get paid by the individuals who decide to break this rule, but that's ok. If players want to break this rule and cost your teams the chance to play on these fields we don't want them back anyways. This tournament is for those who want to just play the top level of flag football only! There will be plenty of cameras on the field to help us out on this one...
- 2. NO ALCOHOL OR MARIJUANA ONSITE – Although this one may be hard to police, if there is a specific player caught there will be a 1 year suspension and a $250.00 fine for him. Again, something that could cost us the right to play on these great fields.
- 3. KEEP THE LANGUAGE DOWN because youth games could be going on fields next to our fields. Players who are cursing at an opponent's, official, or tournament staff should be prepared to have their team penalized, sat down for extended amounts of game time, or just completely thrown out of the tournament. The officials may or may not be willing to give them a warning.
- 4. NO FOOD, SEEDS, GUM , OR TABACCO PRODUCTS ON THE TURF! The grassy areas and sidewalks are the only locations this is allowed.
- 5. WATER IS THE ONLY LIQUID ALLOWED ON THE TURF! No Gatorades, Power Aids, Protein Drinks etc. allowed. The grassy areas and sidewalks is the only location liquids other than water is allowed.
- 6. Please help with cleaning up trash after your games.

PLEASE follow these specific rules so we can continue to play at this amazing sports park!
If you see someone that is in violation please report it to one of our staff members.
Your name will remain anonymous!

Very few tournaments around the country have the ability to play on fields like these!
With everyone's help we can keep these fields and continue to build this tournament!!!

PROJECT INFORMATION

East Colfax Avenue & Dunkirk Street Intersection Improvement Project

PROJECT BACKGROUND

In May 2019, the Colorado Department of Transportation began an intersection safety improvement project on East Colfax Avenue and Dunkirk Street in Aurora. Crews will upgrade traffic signals and improve sight distance for left turn movements from East Colfax Ave. to Dunkirk St. Improvements include minor widening to realign the left turn lanes on East Colfax Ave., paving, signal work, drainage improvements, new curb ramps, curb and gutter work, signing and striping.

IMPACTS TO AURORA SPORTS PARK

This project will impact users of the Aurora Sports Park. We encourage you to add a half hour to get in and out of the complex while the project is underway. You can expect:

- On East Colfax Ave.: 24-hour, seven days a week left lane closures in both directions on East Colfax Avenue at Dunkirk Street.
- On Dunkirk St., exiting Aurora Sports Park: Intermittently reducing the left double turn movement from Dunkirk St. to westbound East Colfax Ave. to a single left turn movement.
- East Colfax Ave. and Dunkirk St. intersection: Occasional weekday closures of the double left turn movement exiting Aurora Sports Park onto westbound East Colfax Ave. as crews implement drainage improvements.

Weather permitting, work at this location is expected to conclude in July 2019.
