MILE HIGH BUILT 21 NOCO BULLS 19

What a slate of games we witnessed in week 2, starting with Mile High Built coming back to edge out the NoCo Bulls. The first half of the game was fairly dry but the second half is when the fireworks started to go down. Now it was a little chippy but that's not the fireworks I'm talking about. NoCo went up 19 to 6 but there was still plenty of time left on the clock. Enough time for "The Ghost" to make up that deficit. After one touchdown and an extra point the game was back to a one possession thriller. NoCo was just thinking they needed to run some time off perhaps get a security TD but MHB'S defense held strong and made a huge stop. Artie doing Artie things, was able to get MHB into a 21 to 19 lead. The Bulls still had time on their hands and David Knighton tossed a bomb that got the Bulls down to about the 8 yard line. At that moment all I could think was "what a game!!" With just a couple seconds left, it came down to 4th and goal but Mile High Built's answer came in the form of former Houston Texan Evan Frie who came up with a monster sack to end the Bulls chances at a W. That ended up being Evan's second sack on the day. I'm intrigued to see how Evan will fair against the more mobile QB's going forward. For NoCo, they'll be trying to get their first win against The Bros in a huge match up. Could the Bulls start the season 0 and 3? Luckily the Bulls had Eric Brown debut for the season and went for 60 yards and two touchdowns. Unfortunately Mike Timm suffered an injury in the first half of the game, hopefully he can make a return next week and help NoCo get their first win of the season. For Mile High Built, they are riding on cloud nine right now and they'll look to keep that going against the playmaker filled Huskers. Through two games, Evan is on pace for 14 sacks on the season but he'll need to step up his game if he wants to get the record. He'll have a heck of time against Mario Lopez with the Huskers as Mario has a quick release. I'm interested to see how Evan does against bad boy Caddy Mauga in the trenches. That right there is two grown ass men. One other key situation to watch for is if Mario and Antoine Kelly be rushing after the ever elusive Artie Barceló? Stay tuned as the answer will come at game on Sunday.

THE BROS 14 COLORADO HUSKERS 12

The second game of the day between the Bros and the Huskers was no slouch of its own. Not as much offensive output as I had anticipated but still plenty of intrigue. To combat the speed of the Bros, the Huskers sent Scotty Phillips and Antoine Kelly as pass rushers. Even with the speedsters, for the most part Donell Wells still escaped or got rid of the ball in time. At one point I overheard Scotty mention "fastest man alive." Okay, I may have exaggerated a little but he did say he is so fast. (Side note: Donell and Antoine had a little race in between games but the results are still in debate.) As for their game it was a defensive battle in the first half but things got ramped up in the second. The scoring started out when Antoine performed his signature dip move with elegance and grace for six points. The Bros would answer back as Donell connected on a beautiful deep post to Matt Rainey. Matt would be on the receiving end for both of the Bros touchdowns. His final stats on the day was 4 rec 97 yards and 2 TD's. Koree Ross rushing on the d-line was coming like a freight train but a lot of the time he was rushing on his own which allowed Mario to escape that pass rush. He was able to get one sack on the day but the QB pressures were there. O'Brian Brooks had a heck of a day on the back end coming away with two interceptions but it should of been three had he not dropped one. The game came down to the extra point after the Huskers scored their second TD but O'Brian was there for the pass breakup to end the game. Up next in The Bros championship defense is the NoCo Bulls. The Bros speed matches up really well against the WR speed the Bulls have. I think the defense of the Bulls will have a tough time especially if Mike Timm can't go. The pass rush from the Bros might be slowed with the beef from the Bulls O-line. I like the defensive match up of the Huskers vs Mile High Built. There are big time playmakers everywhere you look in that game so it should provide some big time plays.

OILERS 12 CTS 06

The surprise of the week was the Oilers 12 to 6 win over CTS. I'm going to start off by saying CTS was without Duece Richardson, take that for what you will. For the Oilers we saw the return of Trevor Okamoto, who was five for five before he got hurt and had to sit out the rest of the game. The Oilers would turn to Mike Uribe again at QB who got the job done. Now the Oilers started the game with only nine guys but the injury to Trevor had the Oilers playing Ironman ball. With all that being said, it's difficult how to truly look at the outcome of this game. I don't want to get too high on it because CTS had to platoon between Vincent Morris and Mitch Colin at QB. But CTS still had its stifling defense which did play to their typical stellar performance. CTS's defense came up with five sacks and countless pressures. I was surprised they didn't come up with any interceptions on the day but the Oilers did a good job of hitting quick passes. I can't say the same thing for CTS's offense who threw two INT's, one of which was pretty much the game sealing interception made by Mike Uribe. Mike had a heck of a game all around, coming up with a sack to go with that interception. This coming week's game could be huge for the Oilers. Getting a second win in A league could potentially set the Oilers up for a second straight season in A league. It will be a tough task for the Oilers to stop Derek Holliday but they do have momentum. As for CTS, they'll have Duece back in the lineup when they face Menace. That is going to be a heck of a match up because I'm sure CTS is pissed. I know I wouldn't want to play them this week. Great match ups all over the field from pass rushers and defensive backs vs o-line and WR. Let's not forget the football intelligence on both teams is through the roof.

COLORADO MENACE 25 DENVER GOATS 13

In the Battle of the comeback QB's, there was absolutely no let down. Both quarterbacks looked sharp in both their physical play and the mental part of the game. The score is more telling of overall team rather than how the QB's played. For the Goats, Derek "Doc" Holiday threw two touchdowns for 289 yards completing 21 of 32 attempts. The ageless wonder Anthony Rankin made a nice catch in the back of the end zone for a touchdown. Dallas Huber forced his way in for the TD on a short and goal to go. What made the difference in this one was the defensive play, some might even say capability. Menace's defense was flying around all over from the four sacks from four different players to the 19 flag pulls of the team. You may say "so what that they had 19 flag pulls." Well ladies and gents simple math tells you that not only did Menace not miss many flag pulls but of Doc's 21 completions only 2 (the touchdowns) were not in the field of play. Those defensive stops got the ball into Jesse Eaton's hands who took full advantage. Completing screen after screen which was great play calling since the Goats had butter fingers on those flags pulls. Truly, Jesse may have threw deep down the field three times but if the screen can't be stopped then why force anything else. Marcus Crowder took two to the house and finished the day with 2 touchdowns and 143 yards. That performance was 180° turnaround from last week when Crowder had drop city which is not like him at all. The one move that I think is going a little unnoticed is Jordan Williams playing more of a middle linebacker position than his typical CB spot. He is flying around and his speed on a blitz is darn near unblockable which resulted in a sack and multiple pressures. Right now my middle linebacker vote for All-Pro is between Jordan and Scott O'Hara of CTS. Can Jordan unseat Scotty for the middle linebacker All-Pro selection?!?!? Speaking of that competition we shall see both of them when CTS goes against Menace in week 3. Jesse will need to continue to grow on his comeback tour and you know CTS will be waiting to jump on those screen plays and they are a better overall flag pulling team than the Goats are. As for the Goats, a match up against the Oilers could produce their first win on the season. The Goats offense is more explosive than the Oilers, so the results of the game could come down to how the defenses play.

I have to admit I am pretty giddy about all the match ups in week 3. The season is starting to heat up and playoff hopes and dreams are starting come to light for some, while some are diminishing really quickly. That goes for both the A league and the B league. I got a feeling this will be a season defining week.

KRYPTONITE 27 FOE 6

Kryptonite came in this week as my underdog mainly because I wasn't sure what roster they'd put on the field. Well, that ended up being a mistake because with Jovan Mays, Kryptonite is one of the top contenders for the B league championship. They routed FOE for the 27 to 6 win. Jovan was able to make today's game and by doing so he threw four touchdowns. Two of those TD's went to Blake Hughes along with a 2 point conversion. One of the most under rated players in B league is Derek Watson who came away with another pick. Whether he plays CB or LB, Watson continues to come up with big time flag pulls or INT's. As for FOE, it appears that they have settled down on a QB, Jordan Hoffman. Hoffman made some solid throws but FOE needs to find a way to give him more time. Don't let the score fool you, FOE still had a solid defense. They came up with a few sacks and interceptions but just not enough at the right times. Next week Kryptonite will take on the Matadors, which in my eyes is a rivalry but not in either teams eyes. FOE will get a little easier match up when they'll go against the Mustangs.

DENVER ROCKERS 20 THE DISCIPLES 12

The game of the week in B league definitely lived up to its billing, as the Rockers and Disciples came down to the last possession. The Disciples found the end zone first but that would end up being the only lead they would have all day. The following possession the Rockers answered back. The Rockers defense stepped up huge and stifled Dero Ard and company at just the right moments. The Rockers implemented more of a spy technique on defense as they didn't want Dero and the Disciples run offense to beat them. Dero did have a good 60 or 70 yard run that gave them one of their scores. The defense for the Disciples had difficulty getting to Pat Yanda with his quick release. Pat did connect with Jerrad Burdick for two touchdowns on the day. I think that gives Jerrad about four on the season but I'm sure if you asked him he'd have those stats down along with the precise yardage and yards after catch lol. I've held off on tooting my own horn so far this season but yours truly might have had the only sack between either team. The Rockers found a way to get their record to 2 and 0 after the 20 to 12 win. The Rockers will have their most physical opponent when they face Swat in week 3. The Disciples will go against TNT which could be a heck of a game to watch.

S.W.A.T. 27 DENVER LIGHTNING 6

When I'm fully wrong I will definitely admit it. I figured the spread system of Lightning would give Swat some issues. In the first half, neither team could really pull away but Swat eventually was able to capitalize. Playing QB for Swat was none other than DaJuan Thomas who actually did a really good job. The initial possessions he looked a little iffy but eventually he settled down and started to eat up Lightning's defense. He started to use his speed to scramble for some good yardage and also started to connect on short passes. With the size of line that Swat has why would you not try to run the ball? That all set up a nice post corner that DaJuan placed a dime for a td. Swat's defense had the speed to frustrate Lightning's offense and only allowed the one TD. The final score was Swat 27 Lightning 6. We shall see if do it all DaJuan stays at QB or if they let TJ Talbot get another crack at it. As for Lightning, their normally stellar offense has only produced 12 total points this season. They'll try to right the ship against another 0 and 2 team in Sudden Impact. Both of those teams are similar in points forced but the Lightning have allowed 40 while Sudden Impact has only allowed 25.

DENVER CHIEFS 38 MUSTANGS 00

The game between the Chiefs and the Mustangs really turned out to be more of a practice for the Chiefs. That comes off as disrespectful but I don't mean anything bad towards the guys who actually showed up for the Mustangs. That's more of a shot at the players who show for one game but don't come back and leave Celestino Archuleta in such a bad situation. The Mustangs had to play ironman ball and only had seven or eight players. As for the Chiefs they took full advantage and got the 38 to 0 mercy rule win. That win brings the Chiefs record to 2 and 0 with a match up against The Mob in week 3. Leading that charge at QB for the Chiefs was Julian Aguilar who ran all over the mustangs. Also having a good offensive game was Kiko Zarate. On defense Nando Lopez was darn near unblockable as he was in the backfield all day. The Chiefs should come away with win number three because on paper they're much better than the Mob, but you can never count your chickens before they hatch. For the Mustangs they'll need some help going against FOE. Mustangs O-line will have their hands full when trying to block FOE's d-line.

MATADORS 12 SUDDEN IMPACT 06

Improving their record to 2 and 0, the Matadors will look forward to facing Kryptonite in week 3. Before we get into that match up, Matadors did almost come up with a second shutout but allowed a late touchdown to Sudden Impact. A very defensive minded game with both teams only scoring one offensive touchdown. Getting a pick six in his first flag football game ever was a kid by the name of Xavier Cochrane for the Matadors. Looks like he is a talented kid but will need to be coached up in flag so he doesn't make bone headed mistakes against the top teams. The offensive touchdown and the pick six gave the Matadors the 12 to 6 win. Sudden Impact will need to find some offensive production if they want to turn their season around. If I said your defense will only give up 12 points, anyone would take that in flag because you're thinking your offense will put up 20. Sudden Impact will take on the floundering, 0-2 Lightning in week 3. I'm anticipating another low scoring game as both teams are scoring just one TD in each of the first two games. As for the Matadors going against Kryptonite, I'm not 100% sure what to expect. These teams know each other very well and if you ask either team they'll say they aren't rivals but in some outsider's eyes, they are rivals (I'm one of those). Regardless of how these two view each other, I'm interested to see if this will be a defensive battle or if it somehow turns into a shootout. A win for the Matadors would just about solidify a playoff spot.

TNT 34 THE MOB 00

The final game of the day really wasn't really a game at all. The veteran TNT team just demolished the rookie Mob team. Final score being 34 to 0 but that was also the score at 2mins in the first half. So clearly TNT wanted to get as much of their full game time as possible and took their foot off the pedal. Once again the line play for TNT on both sides was outstanding. Give Dave Maestas all day on the pocket and he will obviously pick you apart. For The Mob, their lone bright spot was Ryan Conrad-Davis. If they can get more fundamentally sound then they could notch a couple of wins but this will be a growing pain season for them. Mob will see their first mobile QB when they face the Chiefs next game. That could play into their natural athletic ability or it might not. They need to grow from the little victories and get their offensive scheme figured out. For TNT they'll get their first true test when they face the Disciples. Will TNT's overall age start catching up to them now that their schedule will get harder? TNT is averaging 30 points a game but that's against what is considered the two lowest teams in the league, is this TNT team for real or not? Time will tell.

CODE OF CONDUCT/FINE/PENALTIES REMINDER

REMINDER: It is on the team captain's to make sure their players know the rules and follow them. There is absolutely NO FIGHTING. Doing so will result in HEAVY fines and suspensions. The rules are there for a reason. If fights happen then we may lose the rights to play on the amazing fields we have. Also, after each game the sidelines will be checked to make sure the trash has been cleaned up. Fines will be implemented to teams that leave their sidelines trashed. So please clean up after yourselves and your fans. Lets have good sportsmanship and have a great season.

The PF3 Code of Conduct/Suspensions/Fines/Penalties document can be found on our website www.premierflagfootball.com. Click on the Home tab, then select Documents.
