We have heard your feedback about the masking requirements for on-ice participation. WAHA still believes the safest option for everyone is the use of a mask/face covering. Many of you have purchased spitguards/splashguards, and, as long as they are one of those identified in the following link: <http://hecc.org/certspitguards.html>, you may wear either that device OR you may wear a mask, BUT, all players coaches and officials, during games or practices, unless they have a doctor's note excusing them specifically because of a medical condition, must wear either a mask or a spitguard/splash guard.

Yours in Hockey,

Al Deming, President
