SIMLEY SPARTAN SENIORS

#21 BRADEN EVANSON Forward/Left Wing

Braden's game day ritual is to play through warm-ups with his back-up hockey stick. Coach Hauck is his biggest influence on his hockey career.

Get into the gym is the advice he'd give to youth hockey players. His post high school plans are attending University of Colorado-Colorado Springs for a business degree and what he'll miss most about being a Simley Spartan ~ home games with fans!

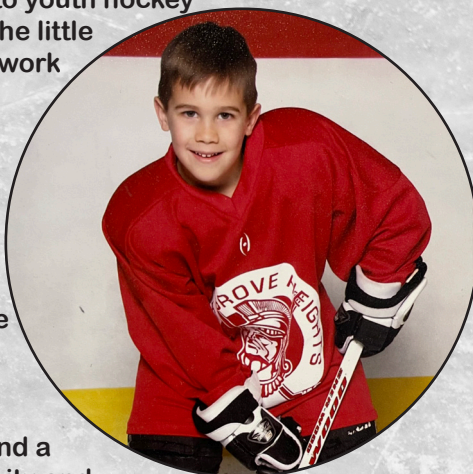

#16 CARL LANE Forward/Right Wing

Carl's biggest influencer on his hockey career is his grandpa. His game day ritual is to listen to his music. His advice to youth hockey players - go 100 percent each day. What he'll miss most about being a Simley Spartan is the team and the community. Carl plans on attending DCTC for electrical.

#25 CADEN RENSLOW Defense

Caden's advice to youth hockey players is to do the little things right and work hard every time you hit the ice. His game day ritual is to have pasta before every game and his dad is his biggest influence on his hockey career. Caden's post high school plans are to attend a four year university and play football. What he'll most miss about being a Simley Spartan is the community and playing with his buddies he's grown up with.

#22 JOEY STANTON Defense

The day to day memories that are made from the classroom to on the ice and everywhere else with the same friends he grew up playing with are what Joey will miss most about being a Simley Spartan. He always listens to music while taping his stick for his game day ritual. His dad is the biggest influence on his hockey career as he has pushed him to become the best hockey player he can be by always having some sort of criticism no matter what. Joey's post high school plans are to attend UW Eau Claire and obtain a finance degree. What advice would he give to youth hockey players? Hard work will always beat talent if you are dedicated to the process.

#20 OSCAR THIBODEAU Forward Right Wing/Defense

Oscar's biggest influencer on his hockey career is Cooper Bollman who showed him hard work is more important than anything else. He has certain music he likes to listen to while getting ready as part of his game day ritual. His advice to upcoming youth hockey players is to learn to play as a team and build relationships with your teammates. Oscar's post high school plans are to study cyber security and continue to play sports. The community, it always makes practices/games more fun knowing he's playing with a team that he's close with and has good chemistry with is what he'll most miss about being a Simley Spartan.
